THREE CENTS

Wilson Case 'Brains' Here; River Hideout Story Is False

Man Linked in Slaying Was Before Grand Jury This Week.

Declined to Testify In Gambling Quiz

Underworld 'Big Shot' Believed to Have Hired Gang Killers.

The "big shot" gambler who, according to police, hired gangsters to do away with his rival, Edward (Mickey) McDonald, is not, as has been reported, hiding on his cabin cruiser in the lower Potomac River. He is in Washington; at least, he was here Monday.

A subpoena was served on him that day by two deputy marshals, who found him in the northeast section. The subpoena required him to appear before the grand jury in connection with an old case involving another gambler.

He did appear, stood on his constitutional rights and refused to testify.

Just why he was served and made to go to the court house is something of a mystery. It was suggested, however, that the idea was to harass him, since he could not be found at the time the case was tried several months ago.

McDonald Escaped.

McDonald, the man who was supposed to face the gangsters' blast, escaped and the bullets meant for him brought down Allen Wilson, 32-year-old newspaper route agent, who was delivering a paper at McDonald's Takoma Park home.

Four men are blamed for the "mistaken identity" killing of Wilson.

Police were hopeful yesterday that one of the four—William Cleary, of Philadelphia—may be linked with the Chevy Chase car barn robbery and murder last January 21.

An attempt was made to bring Cleary to Washington in March. A local racketeer had indicated the turn of Cleary as that of a man who had robbed him. Police hoped that this racketeer would be the means of getting Cleary extradited here.

Loses His Nerve.

However, at an extradition hearing in Philadelphia, the racketeer lost his nerve and said he couldn't identify Cleary.

Cleary recently was arrested in connection with the Wilson murder in a hideout between here and Baltimore. He is now being held at one of the precincts.

Closing Burst Gives Steward Laurel Victory

Greek Fire Takes Place Money in The Easton; Marcella Miss Third.

By Walter Haight,

A Staff Correspondent.

Laurel, Md., Oct. 18.—Steward, a gelded son of Epinard whose name came from his dam, Stewardess, gave five of the upper crust of sprinters a speed lesson here today.

Running in the Easton, the day's feature race, Steward had a length and a half over Greek Fire, a 22-1 shot, at the finish of the dash of 6 furlongs. The third was Marcella Miss.

Given steady backing that sent the odds down, Steward was finally installed a $3.40 favorite and he ran accordingly. Jockey Les Balaski had the mount and he let the Ascot color bearer settle into his best stride before taking any part in the battle for the honor of setting the pace.

Marcella Miss was in front with City Slicker flustering his backers by running second at the far turn.

But once in the stretch, Balaski gave Steward the speed signal and the gelding bounded away from the opposition. From the rear of the field, Greek Fire suddenly awakened to Jockey Eddie Arca's urging and developed a closing rush that was effective enough for second money. Marcella Miss managed to stagger into third position.

In comparison to some of the daily double mutuels paid here, today's was only interest. Favorites, Valiant Fox and Mario, were the winners and the pay-off was $23.50.

The favorite players were off to a flying start when Valiant Fox won the first race from Star Scout and Footstep. Prominently placed on the start, Valiant Fox turned on the speed in the closing stages and held Star Scout safe. Footstep, running on the rail all the way, was

Flier Killed as Plane Hits Radio Tower in Fog

Mason, Ohio, Oct. 18 (AP).—O. K. Bevin, of Fort Thomas, Ky., formerly an air mail pilot, crashed to his death near here today while flying in a heavy fog. Residents near the scene of the crash told Marshall Richard Cox the plane struck an antenna-tower of the Crosley Radio Corp., and then smashed to the earth about 600 feet away.

Officials of the Aeronautical Corporation of America, from Cincinnati, identified the flier, and said he was using a ship owned by a Detroit man. Bevin, they said, was flying from Cincinnati to Detroit.

Marchers Wear Masks.

Kiev, U. S. S. R., Oct. 18 (AP).—Training for the "next war" eight members of the Osoviakhim Society, including several women, today completed a record march in gas masks. Without removing the masks, they covered 81 miles in 10 hours 47 minutes.

Central Crushes St. Johns, 31-0; Eastern Pass Defeats Calvert

Eastern and Central High polished off their pre-interhigh series schedules with victories yesterday as high and prep schools of the Washington area went into action in all sections of the city in an array of six games.

Eastern continued to set the pace for the public high schools, defeating Calvert Hall School of Baltimore, 6 to 0, before 2,000 student fans at Eastern Field. It was the fourth straight victory for the Lincoln Parkers who have yet to be scored upon this season.

Central displayed impressive power in winning its annual game at St. John's High, 31 to 0, before another 2,000 at Central Stadium. The winning margin was a surprising indication of Central strength.

Last of Local 'Blackface Gang' Is Captured by Detroit Police

Fitzpatrick and Girl Companion to Be Brought to Washington to Face Robbery Charges; Young Woman Here Believed Fiancee of Dead Leader.

The arrest in Detroit of Joseph Edward Fitzpatrick, 35, alleged member of Washington's notorious "blackface gang," the leader of which, Morris Beck, was shot to death by Detective Sgt. Earl Baker during a holdup in a suburban cafe here Sunday, was announced yesterday by Inspector Frank Burke, chief of detectives.

Inspector Burke sent Detective Sgt. Frank O. Brass to Detroit after Fitzpatrick and Vivian Jenkins, 19, who was arrested with him. Both have waived extradition. The Jenkins girl is believed to have been seen at the wheel of one of the gang's cars during several robberies.

Few Details.

Details of the capture in Detroit were meager, but it is understood Fitzpatrick surrendered without a struggle. The arrest wrote fits to the gang, a group of hoodlums who preyed principally on cafes and liquor stores, blanking their faces and posing as Negroes.

Meanwhile it was learned yesterday that Bernice Hefflin, alias Beck, believed to have been the fiancée of Beck, was in police custody, held for investigation. It was said Beck attempted the holdup in which he was killed in order to get money for their marriage.

The Hefflin girl, 19, was arrested with Myrtle Dodson, 22, and Elizabeth Martin, 20, with whom she was living in the 600 block of 1 street northwest. Police say Miss Hefflin tried to communicate with Fitzpatrick.

Waichman Queried.

Lunsford Boas, 52, a night watchman, at whose quarters the girls allegedly were living, was detained by police yesterday for questioning. Fitzpatrick was the driver of the automobile the night Beck was killed, police believe.

When the wounded gunman staggered, dying, from the cafe, his companions dumped him from the automobile to the roadside and escaped.

Deisel Tram Claims A New Speed Record

Chicago, Oct. 18 (AP).—A new train speed record of 39 hours and 34 minutes from the Pacific Coast was claimed today by Samuel T. Bledsoe, president of the Santa Fe Railroad, for his Diesel-powered train.

A test run with the new engine hauling nine standard coaches started at Los Angeles at 5 a. m. Wednesday. It developed into a successful shot at the former speed mark, he said, after Kansas City was passed. The train reached Chicago last night at 10:34 p. m. (C. S. T.).

Bledsoe said the fastest previous run between the two cities was made several months ago by the Union Pacific streamliner in 39 hours and 37 minutes.

Firemen recovered the bodies of Miss Whitlock and McLeod. Fireman L. C. Gregory, of Portlock, who first dived into the canal, reported that the bodies were wedged in the front seat of the car. Flora's body was not recovered until a wrecking truck had pulled the machine out.

Fire department pump-truck crews worked for more than a half hour in an attempt to revive McLeod and the girl.

Senator Lewis to Seek Renomination in '36

Chicago, Oct. 18 (AP).—Senator James Hamilton Lewis, Democrat of Illinois, was announced today as a candidate for renomination in 1936 by William L. O'Connell, who managed Senator Lewis' 1930 campaign.

O'Connell said the authorization for the announcement was called by the Senator, who is en route to the United States from Russia after recovering from pneumonia.

Maryland U. Bars Farrell And Andorka

Two of Football Squad Had Prior Experience With College.

Action Follows Sniscak Protest; None Sent From V. M. I.

By Bill McCormick.

A Staff Correspondent.

College Park, Md., Oct. 18.—William Andorka, star center, and Albert Farrell, substitute tackle, over whose eligibility a hurricane in a teapot has been raging, today were barred by the University of Maryland athletic board from representing the Old Line in any further football contests.

Andorka was declared ineligible for football after the University admitted it had erred in believing the West Liberty State Teachers College, where the center played in 1932, at that time was a junior college.

Farrell resigned from the football squad, stating in his resignation that he took part in "athletic contests not sanctioned by the university" and played as a member of the freshman football squad at Fordham University.

Sniscak Protest Basis.

The eligibility of Andorka and Farrell was challenged by Johnny Sniscak, University of North Carolina guard who was barred on the eve of the Tarheels' game last Saturday against Maryland on a protest lodged by Maryland authorities.

Sniscak charged that Farrell had played professional football in Fredericksburg, Va., and had been a member of the Fordham freshman squad, violation in each instance of Southern Conference rules. Farrell immediately was benched while the charges were investigated.

Sniscak called attention to the fact that Andorka had played with the West Liberty Teachers' aggregation in 1932, pointing out that the West Virginia school was a four-year college at the time. Maryland authorities admitted freely that Andorka had played at West Liberty, but insisted that in 1932 that school was a junior college. The Maryland authorities were forced to admit that error officially today in announcing the barring of Andorka.

No V. M. I. Protest.

The action declaring the two players ineligible was taken by the Maryland Athletic Board as a result of an investigation started at the time Sniscak made his charges, and not as the result of a protest from the Virginia Military Institute, which the Terrapins play tomorrow.

In explaining the misunderstanding, an official statement, issued by Dr. L. B. Broughton, chairman of the Maryland Athletic Board, said the Maryland institution had been fully conversant with the fact that Andorka formerly was a student at West Liberty State Teachers, and that he had played one year of football while there.

Dr. Broughton's statement said further that Andorka's status was investigated more than a year ago before he ever played football at Maryland. The information Maryland got at that time, it is said, was that West Liberty had been a right in 1931 to give degrees. Maryland authorities believed at that time, and in the year Andorka played at West Liberty, 1932, the college had not yet had a graduation class and consequently was not a four-year standard college.

Not 'True Situation.'

"It now develops that this information did not represent the true situation," Dr. Broughton's statement said, "and that the West Liberty State Teachers College began to give degrees a year before that."

"It is plainly evident that Andorka is not eligible to represent the University of Maryland in 1935," he admits, "and inasmuch as it was due entirely to the university's failure to check closely enough on the information at its disposal at the time Andorka's case was considered, the Department of Athletics of each college has agreed to accept the situation."

Dillinger Decoy Takes Fight to Appeals Court

Chicago, Oct. 18 (AP).—Mrs. Anna Sage, decoy of gangster John Dillinger, carried to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals today her fight to avoid deportation to Rumania on grounds of moral turpitude.

Her attorneys filed her appeal from the ruling of Federal District Judge John P. Baranek, who held yesterday that she had a fair deportation hearing. The appeal alleged Judge Barnes erred when he refused to hear testimony that the Department of Justice had decided Mrs. Sage immunitary from deportation as a reward for luring Dillinger to his death. She is free on bond pending the appeal.

Oklahoma City, Okla., Oct. 18 (AP).—Women on relief—22 of them—came traffic cops today. Equipping each with a red flag, Ron Stephens, Federal Works administrator at Chickasha, Okla., directed instruction of the group in signaling. He plans to use them in diverting traffic from stretches of road being repaired under Federal projects.

Laval Pledges Britain Help as Rome Parleys Raise Hopes for Peace

London, Paris, Italian Officials Confer on African Crisis.

'Favorable Turn' In Talks Reported

Important Communique Slated to Be Issued Jointly Today.

Copyright, 1935, by the United Press.

Rome, Oct. 18.—Peace hopes rose sharply tonight as the result of two important diplomatic developments centering in Rome.

The developments were: Discussion of three-power conversations among Britain, France and Italy for settlement of the Italo-Ethiopian dispute were reported to have taken "a favorable turn."

The foreign office announced that Britain and Italy will issue an "important" joint communique by tomorrow morning.

Diplomats believed the way might be opening gradually for both peaceful settlement of the war in Ethiopia and easing of the tension between Italy and Britain resulting from the latter's stand at Geneva for strong penalties against the Fascist government.

Agreement Reported.

It was reported diplomats reached an agreement whereby Britain would withdraw some of her battle ships from the Mediterranean and Italy would reduce her armed forces in Libya, where they threaten Egypt and the Suez Canal. French naval units would replace the British squadrons withdrawn.

The international situation was believed to have been improved by conferences between British Ambassador Sir Eric Drummond and Premier Benito Mussolini and between Sir Eric and the French ambassador, Count Charles de Chambrun.

The government, in an official communique, said the fact Italo-French and Franco-British conversations are continuing "shows the doors have not been closed"—presumably upon a diplomatic settlement of the Italo-Ethiopian and Italo-British disputes.

Text of Communique.

Text of the government's guardedly-worded communique: "Conversations between Paris and Rome and between Paris and London are going on through normal diplomatic channels. There is nothing specific at the moment but the fact that these conversations are continuing shows the door has not been closed."

British and Italian quarters refused to hint contents of the anticipated joint communique. Diplomats believed it would be along one of these lines:

A mutual expression of peaceful intentions toward one another calm the rising tide of antagonism between the two nations as result of Britain's leadership in League of Nations' penalties against Italy.

Announcement of withdrawal of part of Britain's armed forces from the Mediterranean in exchange for reduction of Italy's troops and airplanes in Libya.

France Seizes 8 'Spies' Near German Border

Metz, France, Oct. 18 (AP).—Secret police today arrested eight alleged spies for foreign governments near the fortifications along the German border. One of those arrested was described as a German employee of the Saar government who had asked soldiers of the Metz garrison to sell him maps of the forts. A photographic map of the forts was found in his luggage. The other seven were said to include French, Luxembourg and Czech nationals.

Italian Planes Sweep Makale With Bullets; Battle Impends

Addis Ababa, Oct. 18.—Ethiopia's war-embroidered government claimed tonight a fleet of low-flying Italian airplanes had raked the strategic northern village of Makale with machine guns.

Forsaking the expensive bombs, the government said, the Fascist flyers sprayed the natives with bullets. Casualties were not announced. (An Exchange Telegraph dispatch said 60 were killed at Makale by both machine guns and bombs.)

Makale is 60 miles southeast of Addis Ababa, which was taken by the Italian army in their first big push in the north.

Ras Seyoum, the Ethiopian commander in the north, was said officially to be forming a new general staff in preparation for stiffer resistance.

Premier Realizes Likelihood of War

Gets Advice of Marshal Petain, Trusted Adviser, Before Replying.

Copyright, 1935, by the United Press.

London, Oct. 18.—Britain has not backed down in her firm stand against Italy, the United Press learned tonight.

A British version of the conversation in Rome today between British Ambassador Sir Eric Drummond and Premier Benito Mussolini was received which differed sharply from the account of the conference made known in Rome.

According to a British official source, Drummond told Mussolini Britain will reduce her naval concentrations in the Mediterranean only if the Italian press ceases its anti-British attacks and threats immediately.

By the United Press.

Paris, Oct. 18.—France today answered Britain's demand for assurance of naval assistance in case of an Anglo-Italian war with a "plain affirmative."

The British embassy said Premier Laval felt he had given the British satisfaction. The French foreign office said the note was "fully affirmative."

The embassy issued the following communique: "The president of the council (Laval) gave the British ambassador the answer to various points under discussion between the two governments."

Cited "Plain Affirmative."

"This reply, which is very full, has been transmitted at once to London, but until it is studied by the secretary of state for foreign affairs the embassy cannot with propriety make any comment."

"It is understood that the president of the council before leaving for Clermont-Ferrand this afternoon expressed his opinion that the reply was a plain affirmative to the question put by his majesty's government."

The French official spokesman announced: "Premier Laval's reply to the British question, which is long, is fully affirmative and shows the French are in complete agreement with the British regarding interpretation of Article XVI of the Covenant."

Gravely with which Premier Pierre Laval regards the decision he was compelled to make was illustrated when he called for the advice of Marshal Henri Philippe Petain, of World War fame. Just before handing British Ambassador Sir George Clerk his answer.

Military Results Foreseen.

The marshal, a member of the supreme council, is one of the government's most trusted military advisers. His conference with the premier was believed to indicate that Laval expects France's decision to have eventual military consequences.

Britain asked for assurance that the British navy could utilize

Forty Sheiks Proxies For King at Wedding

Cairo, Egypt, Oct. 18 (AP).—A message to the newspaper Mokattam today said King Ibn Saud of Saudi Arabia was married at Damascus, Syria, by proxy.

A delegation of 40 prominent sheiks attended the ceremony, representing the absent bridegroom. The bride was the daughter of Sheikh Nawal El Shaalan, of Damascus.

The Saudi religion permits four wives. King Ibn Saud has never exceeded that number, but has divorced many wives, marrying others in their places.

British Sailors Rescue Italians

Alexandria, Egypt, Oct. 18.—British sailors went to the rescue of Italians today when two boiler explosions aboard the Italian liner Ausonia killed six members of the crew and injured 20.

The explosions set fire to the vessel as it entered this port from Haifa, Palestine.

Despite flames reaching out from the Ausonia, a British sailor aboard a small ship cut the Ausonia's anchor and she was beached. Passengers had been safely removed.

The British hospital ship Maine, on duty in the harbor, went to the aid of the flaming vessel, along with other craft flying the Union Jack. The captain of the Ausonia warmly praised the work of the rescuers.

Most of those killed and injured were on the fueling staff. Three were killed outright and three others died aboard the hospital ship after quarantine officials had placed aboard the Ausonia at the harbor entrance. Shore fire engines, armed with high-pressure hoses, aided in fighting the flames. The cause of the explosion had not been determined.

The Ausonia was built in 1928 and is of 12,995 tons. She has been engaged in weekly passenger service in the Mediterranean.

Three Arrested In Policy Game

Vice Squad Seizes Trio as Aids of La Fontaine in Numbers Racket.

Three alleged runners for Jimmy LaFontaine, widely known gambler, whose "spot," a luxurious mansion over the District line, in Prince Georges County, has been under almost constant observation, were arrested by Vice Squad detectives yesterday.

The arrests were made separately in the southwest section of the city, and the men are believed to be "small-time" runners of LaFontaine's organization.

At headquarters, where they were booked for operating a lottery, the prisoners were registered as John Raymond Walker, 42, of the 400 block of Tenth street southeast; Pearl Herbert, 37, colored, of the 400 block of Stafford court, and Cordova Burnett, colored, of the 1200 block of Union street southwest.

The trio had distributed numbers slips, police said. They added they had watched Walker's activities closely, and that he went regularly to LaFontaine's mansion. The two Negroes worked for him in distributing the slips, police asserted.

At headquarters the prisoners were held under $2,000 bond each, which they later made.

Shotgun Blast Rids Mayo's of Bird Noise

Rochester, Minn., Oct. 18 (AP).—Patients at Mayo Clinic got their noise all in one prolonged blast last night.

Weary of listening to a nightly serenade by starlings and blackbirds roosting in trees adjacent to the hospital, they asked relief.

Police responded with shotguns and flashlights after streams of water from fire hoses, lights buzzers and bells placed on branches failed. Hundreds of birds fell in the fusillade. Patients sighed with relief, turned over and went to sleep.

which was not named. Curious natives who had never seen such things picked up two of the bombs and banged them on a rock. They exploded, blowing several persons to pieces.

Another government contention was that many Italians in Eritrea, fearing Great Britain may cut off their exit from East Africa, were fleeing to the Sudan. Merchants and officials at Massawa, Eritrea, were said to have been instructed to send their families away as soon as possible.

The American medical missionary, Dr. Robert William Hockman, of Wheaton, Ill., arrived in Addis Ababa today for medical supplies and said "Italian forces are using gas bombs, but so far they have caused very little damage."

Big Drive Indicated.

"There are many indications that point to the launching of a big offensive," the missionary asserted. "I am rushing back by the next train to help the casualties."

The Italian army in the south, it was reported, has not moved from its base along the Somali frontier and Ethiopian regulars have not been seen anywhere by the invaders.

It was believed certain the warriors of Haile Selassie were holding well-defended positions back in the desert, near oases where there is food and water.

There, it was thought, they will wait for the untold Italians to cross the waterless sands, exposed to swift nomad bands of guerrillas. When the Blackshirts are weary, thirsty and without spirit the Ethiopian army will fall on them.

Reuter's News Agency dispatch from Addis Ababa said the Ethiopian Emperor had ordered 100,000 troops massed in the olo region in the south in expectation of an Italian advance from Schalland.

This strategy, this source said, was the contemplated capture of Dolo as soon as the Italians strike again in the north, and then an Ethiopian march across Italian Somaliland to Mogadishu.

(The news agency also said the morale of Italians on the southern front was low because of fevers and the difficult terrain. It reported the capture of an Italian pilot who landed behind Ethiopian lines near Dolo. His companion was said to have been eaten by a crocodile while attempting to ford a swollen stream.)

Government officials denied reports of a revolt in Gollan Province, saying mobilization was proceeding there and recruits were being sent to the northern front.

All important chieftains, they added, are remaining loyal to the Negus. They claimed only 150 men had accompanied the traitorous Haile Selassie Gussa to Eritrea.

NYA Liberalizes Requisites for Aid

Maryland Children Have Only to Prove Need.

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, Oct. 18.—A liberalization of rules for aid to needy children was announced today by John J. Seidel, State director of the National Youth Administration.

Seidel said that if school children not on relief could prove need, Federal aid would be extended to them. Heretofore, only children of relief families were eligible for aid.

Seidel announced the liberalized rules after conferring with Aubrey Williams, executive director of the NYA.

He said hereafter payments also would be allowed to children who became 16 years of age during the school year. Formerly, aid was restricted to those between 16 and 25.

Seidel said he has asked high school principals to submit by October 28 a list of pupils eligible for aid under the new rules. The amount of aid is set at $6 per month.

Borah Faces First Fight Since 1907; Gov. Ross Told by Seeress; Pope Helps Idaho Postal Receipts.

By Raymond Clapper

BOISE, Idaho, Oct. 18.—Until lately Senator Borah shared Idaho fame only with the big potato. Not so now. The Old Master still is Idaho's No. 1 celebrity, but second-string stars are rising where Borah once glittered in solitary splendor.

These two rival starlets are Senator James Pinckney Pope and Gov. C. Ben Ross. Both Democrats. They shine rather weakly compared with Borah, but the fact that they are even visible to the naked eye makes their appearance a political phenomenon as historic in Idaho's simple annals as the discovery of Halley's comet was to the astronomers.

As the first real rivals of Senator Borah for the headlines outside of Idaho, they are making the most of it. For the first time since Borah went to the Senate in 1907—nearly 30 years ago—he has a real opponent for re-election—Gov. Ross. All of Borah's other opponents have been pushovers, nominated with the understanding that they would not permit themselves to defeat Borah.

And it is Senator Pope who has made the country conscious for the first time that Idaho has two Senators at Washington. Pope, a struggling country lawyer, was mayor of Boise when elected to the Senate in 1932. Only a local figure in Boise most of his life, he suddenly burst upon the Senate as a great international statesman, as if determined to show the world that Borah was not the only international statesman Idaho had produced. Not only that, he undertook to show that Borah was a mere, narrow-minded, provincial isolationist. Pope made himself the champion of the World Court, and toyed with the idea of taking the United States into the League of Nations. He went to Europe and interpreted American public sentiment on the Ethiopian affair in a way that aroused hopes that America would participate in the spanking of Italy. But unfortunately he found a discouraging lack of appreciation in the Senate, where he was publicly rebuffed, and at the State Department, where his well-intentioned remarks in Europe were heard with groans.

All of this has had an intoxicating effect in Idaho. It has made the State alive, has increased Boise postal receipts something terrific, and has caused itinerant magazine and newspaper writers to make Boise a point of call. Senator Borah has just declined to write his autobiography at 50 cents a word. He said he didn't want to look backward until he retired. But he has agreed to look forward in a magazine article or two which will shortly fatten his bank roll.

Gov. C. Ben Ross is the man of destiny who is going to find out whether it is possible to beat Borah for the Senate. A tall, rangy ranchman, probably nearing 60—he keeps his age a secret—educated through the sixth grade, and as good at political tricks as Magician Thurston is with cards. Occasionally, Ross consults a seeress at Pocatello who has told him that a great destiny waits upon him. Maybe something bigger than the Senate. He arrived at a meeting of the Nazarene sect one night to find a political opponent in the midst of a powerful talk on patriotism. The orator had his audience pop-eyed. When he finished there remained nothing more to be said on the subject. He sat down thinking that he had fixed Ross all right. But Ross was equal to the challenge.

"My friends," he said, "I did not come here to talk about patriotism. I want to talk to you about God."

He took a strong stand in favor of God, made it the paramount issue, and nailed down practically every vote in the place.

When Ross, who is a big outdoor man, attends a supper given by the ladies aid society, he goes out into the kitchen and helps the women folks wash the dishes. He gets in the way, but then it isn't every ladies aid that can have a Governor wash dishes.

So the girls put up with it. When a political speech is being broadcast, Ross begins with some remark about the daggoned "microscope" in front of him. They always laugh at that. He was elected Mayor of Pocatello when he had spent less than 100 nights in the place. Just walked in and took it over. He's the first Idaho Governor born in the State, born on a ranch 40 miles from the nearest doctor. He'll get up before an audience and ask anyone to name the subject. They haven't suggested one yet that Ross wasn't able to make a speech about, or at least around.

Yet, he has made a reasonably good Governor apparently. He has cut the general property tax and recouped through a sales tax and a tax on electric power. In his third term now, he continues to cut expenses sharply. In his first term, out of authorizations of $4,500,000 for the biennium, he turned back $500,000. Each year he has stayed under the authorizations.

Borah's top vote in Idaho was about 100,000. Ross received 116,000 votes for his second term in 1932, carrying every county in the State, finishing 7,000 votes ahead of Roosevelt. In 1924 the Democratic candidate for governor received a total of 23,500 votes. In 1928 Ross ran for governor 15,000 votes ahead of Smith, but was defeated. Last time, in 1934, he slipped badly, polling only 80,000 votes, but still 17,000 ahead of his opponent. The remainder of his ticket, however, had majorities double this or larger. Ross is a lone operator and isn't in such high favor in his own State organization.

Most informed persons believe he will give Borah an interesting, perhaps uncomfortable race, but not a dangerous one. They now place the State as for Roosevelt and Borah. Few here seem to think Borah will be the Presidential nominee of the Republicans. Ross is all set—although he hasn't announced that he is a candidate—to harangue Borah for spending too much time on international affairs and not enough on errands for Idaho. He's going to be that kind of a campaign with the Ross brand of humor and ridicule in quantity. Ross people want Farley to keep out so that they can have a better chance to honey up to the Republican voters.

Borah is moving around the State, meeting the voters, flirting with the Townsendites, although not committing himself to the Townsend plan as is, talking monopoly and local problems. Large blocks of voters still think he is one of the great men of the time and some of his opponents privately do not think he can be beaten.

Complaint is heard here against the WPA plan to give $600 a year to encourage native composers of music. There are only two in the State who are worth anything. They don't need relief. Local citizens see no reason to encourage the others.

League Moves To Impose Ban On Profiteers

Possibility of a Naval Blockade Against Italy Brought Nearer.

to be approved by the "big committee" of 53 nations at night.

15 Now Pledge Embargo.

As Anthony Eden, British minister for League affairs, urged the economic sanctions planners on informal acceptance by the first Free State and Lithuania swelled to 15 the number of nations announcing enforcement of an arms embargo against Italy and the lifting of such an embargo from the shoulders of little Ethiopia.

The others are Russia, Great Britain, France, Poland, Greece, Cuba, Latvia, Colombia, Finland, France and Australia. (In addition, Sweden and Norway announced similar action today.)

As for the danger of a blockade, some delegates saw it possible if there appeared little hope of real peace negotiations and if other sanctions were found to be a slow and ineffective means of stopping the war.

October 28 Is Deadline.

In today's economic sanctions committee amendment, League members were asked to inform the League by October 28 whether they are ready to put into effect an anti-Italian boycott. On the next day, a British spokesman said, the League would fix the date for putting economic sanctions in force.

Reports at once were circulated that if, on October 28, Great Britain finds only a few countries ready to boycott Italy, Britain will contend the sanctions system is important and that something more drastic must be done.

In other words, some delegates feared a naval blockade would be found inevitable.

Some British correspondents have been suggesting in dispatches to London that economic and financial sanctions may not be effective for six months or a year and that a blockade of the Red Sea, the Gulf of Aden and the coasts of Eritrea and Italian Somaliland might be necessary to choke off hostilities.

How Method Will Work.

The purpose of the anti-profiteering machinery is to equalize trade currents likely to be deranged by the nonparticipation of certain states in sanctions.

For instance, if the permanent vigilance committee which will be created to watch over the enforcement of sanctions finds Germany shipping vastly increased quanti-marked the first resumption of direct diplomatic negotiations between the two countries since Italian troops attacked Ethiopia. Just prior to the outbreak of the conflict the British Ambassador was a frequent visitor at the Venice palace and foreign office.

Anglophobia Has Increased.

Since the League began operating under Article XVII to punish Italy for aggression, with Britain taking a leading role, Italian anglophobia has increased. Italians have been shocked by the apparent British intention to drive them to an abject withdrawal in Ethiopia or to war.

While the diplomatic pot boiled, a communique was announced: "Gen. De Bono (commander of Italian forces in Ethiopia) telegraphed that except for reconnaissance flights there is nothing new on either the Eritrean or Somaliland fronts. Submission of chiefs, population and religious communities continues."

Italian correspondents with the Italians on the northern front reported that a general advance of Italian troops southward from Aduwa was "imminent." Gen. Pietro Badoglio, chief of staff, who has just arrived in Eritrea, was quoted by the Italian press as expecting a mass attack by the Ethiopians as soon as they have completed concentration.

ties of coal to Italy as a result of Italy's exclusion from British coal supplies, League states participating in sanctions would reduce their coal imports from Germany and increase them from Great Britain.

Likewise, if the United States should ship more oil to Italy as a result of Italy's exclusion from the Rumanian oil market, the League states would buy more Rumanian oil and less from the United States.

The object, it was emphasized, would not be retaliation against non-member states, but an equalization of trade which otherwise would be deranged.

Trade Quotas Increased.

The mutual aid sub-committee also adopted provisions for a general increase in trade quotas in favor of countries to be hit hardest by participation in economic sanctions.

There also will be provision for preferential treatment in the way of lowered customs schedules for those countries.

It was stressed, however, that cash benefits will not be provided for sanctions sufferers. The British delegation made this particularly clear by insisting on the redrafting of one sentence in the mutual assistance report which mentioned "financial measures" of assistance.

France Pledges Aid To Great Britain

French Mediterranean naval bases in case of a brush with Italy. A large body of French opinion—which may express itself in the senatorial elections Sunday—fears Britain is rushing headlong into war with Italy. Apparently Laval decided to take the plunge and stand or fall before the electorate on his decision to strengthen the Franco-British tie.

Laval handed his answer to Sir George on the latter's second visit to the Quai d'Orsay. Another visitor was Italian Ambassador Vittorio Cerutti.

Methodists Note Upturn in Virginia

Only Eastern Shore Fails to Show Improvement.

By the Associated Press.

Danville, Va., Oct. 18.—Reports submitted at today's session of the Virginia Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, reflected improved conditions for the church throughout most of Virginia.

Only one section of the State—the Eastern Shore—failed to show improved conditions in the reports presented by presiding elders and lay leaders of the conference.

The report of B. M. White, presiding elder of the Petersburg Conference, declared there had been one-third more accessions to the church during the past year than in 1934, and that meeting conference acceptances ran about 80 per cent, representing a gain of 18 per cent over last year.

Most of the indictments grew out of labor troubles here and were registered in both felony and misdemeanor indictments, a number of them involving alleged conspiracies to damage property or injure individuals. The jury was recessed until December 3. All accused are to be arraigned in Circuit Court here tomorrow.

Funeral services for Frederick Mueller, 69, a resident of the District for nearly 45 years and a retired grocer, will be held at his residence, 306 Fourteenth street southeast, today at 3 p. m., followed by burial in Congressional Cemetery.

Mueller, who came to the United States from Germany as a young man, died Thursday at his home after a lingering illness. At the time of his retirement he was manager of a store at Fourteenth and C streets southeast.

Surviving Mr. Mueller are his wife, Mrs. Marie Mueller; a daughter, Mrs. Katie Rector, and three grandchildren.

Strange Bird Given Zoo Believed to Be a Coot

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Hagerstown, Md., Oct. 18.—The City Park zoo had a new addition today, but the Park Commissioners are not so certain of the species.

Patrolman Roy E. Davis was riding along the street yesterday when a bird strange to this section was captured after a battle. The bird, about the size of a mountain grouse, is believed to be a coot, a bird native to the northwest. It has a crown like bill, partially webbed feet and is bluish in color.

William Green Prize Exhibits To Lead A.F.L. For 11th Year In Purcellville

Fight on Matthew Woll by Young Chicagoan Features Election.

By the Associated Press.

Atlantic City, N. J., Oct. 18.—By acclamation, the American Federation of Labor chose William Green today to lead organized labor for another year.

In marked contrast to Green's uncontested election to the federation's presidency for the eleventh consecutive time, a small group of young left-wingers made an unsuccessful attempt to oust Matthew Woll, veteran spokesman for the federation, from the third vice presidency, a post he has held since 1919.

The outgrowth of bitter feeling between conservative and liberal delegates was manifest throughout the federation convention. This election revolt was the first since Daniel Tobin, of the teamsters, was elected treasurer in 1917.

Young Delegate Rebels.

Howard Lawrence, a youthful delegate from the Chicago casket makers, upset the customary calm and harmony that surrounded the election of the 15 vice presidents by leaping to his feet after Woll had been nominated with the statement he wished to place in nomination the name of Emil Costello, of Kenosha, Wis., employee of the Simmons bed factory there.

Most of the delegates appeared to be stunned. Woll had been the subject of John L. Lewis' fire during the week, but few had expected any move against his re-election. Then a low roar of protest arose. Green received the nomination as regular, however, and directed Secretary Frank Morrison to call a roll.

When it became apparent that the vote would be overwhelmingly in Woll's favor, Costello, a youth in his twenties, arose and asked that his candidacy be withdrawn, but that the delegates favoring him be permitted to register their vote.

When Green refused to allow the stipulation, Costello insisted that the vote continue. The International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers—defeated last night in a jurisdictional dispute—was the only international to vote for him. He picked up 264 votes, mostly from newly organized Federal unions, while Woll polled 28,522.

Lewis Backs Woll.

Among those voting for Woll was John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, who introduced a resolution in the convention this week that resulted in Woll's resignation from the acting presidency of the National Civic Federation, an anti-radical industrial relations forum. The only other contest was for the fifteenth vice presidency, left vacant by the resignation of George Berry, of the Printing Pressmen and now industrial recovery co-ordinator. Frank Morrison, veteran secretary, was re-elected by acclamation.

Conclusion of the elections left the cleaning up of three majority resolutions the only important work before the convention. They are:

Fate of Zenge In Love Death Is Given to Jury

Has Choice of 6 Verdicts; State Scores Insanity Plea, Asks Death.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Oct. 18.—A jury whose members debated 29, debated tonight whether malice or madness impelled Mandeville W. Zenge to the mutilation slaying of his love rival, Dr. Walter J. Bauer.

The jurors retired at 5:27 p. m. (E. S. T.) with six possible forms of verdicts from Judge Cornelius J. Harrington after hearing Prosecutor Charles S. Dougherty in the State's final impassioned appeal for a death sentence.

Scoffs at Insanity Plea.

Scoffing at defense contentions that the 26-year-old Missouri farm lad was temporarily deranged when he committed the crime his counsel made no effort to disprove, Dougherty said:

"He knew he couldn't go before 12 jurors in his native State with this specious defense that, for a few days of his entire life, he went insane."

Under Judge Harrington's instructions, the jurors were told they might acquit Zenge, hold he was insane when Bauer was emasculated but sane now, decide he was insane then and insane now, guilty with a death sentence, guilty with a prison term of not less than 14 years, or sane at the time of the crime, but insane now.

If the jury should hold him insane, from "emotional shock," at the time of the crime, but sane now, he would go free. If they determine he is still insane he would go to a State asylum.

If they held he had become mentally unbalanced since the mutilation, he could be sent to prison but not executed.

Girl in Case Shuns Court.

The girl in the fatal triangle, Louise Shaffer Bauer, 18-year-old nurse who spurned Zenge to become the bride and widow of the doctor, was not in court for the pleas of the opposing lawyers.

Dougherty was so vigorous in presenting the State's demands for the death penalty that defense counsel leaped to their feet with cries that Dougherty's arguments were inflammatory. They demanded a mistrial. Judge Harrington denied their motion.

The defendant listened throughout the day without apparent emotion. His father remained in court but his mother did not hear the closing arguments. J. Andy Zenge, the father, shook hands with Dougherty and Prosecutor Mal Coghlan after the arguments ended and said he bore them no ill will.

Countering the prosecution's demand for his electrocution, Zenge's counsel earlier urged that he be returned to his family and home community.

Chief Witness Attacked.

"It is your duty, gentlemen," said Joseph Roach in the final defense plea, "not to send this defendant to the electric chair or to a gloomy prison but to bid this boy go forth to that community from which he came."

Roach termed the State's case entirely circumstantial and assailed its principal witness, William Leinert—the cab driver who testified Zenge admitted the pen-knife emasculation which cost Bauer's life last July 31—as a person of "low repute."

His colleague, Joseph Green, attacked for the first time during the trial pretty Louise Shaffer's story that she had married Bauer only after Zenge shied away from a wedding as the culmination of their ten-year romance, and asserted:

That as late as July 7 "a week before her marriage, she had promised she would marry" Zenge. The emotional shock of the sudden revelation that she had wed Bauer, an instructor in the college at Kirksville, Mo., to which the hospital in which she was superintendent of nurses was attached, drove Zenge mad, Green said.

Culbertson on Bridge

THE BAXTER-SELASSIE COUP.
An entirely new bridge play, so original it seems worthy of being passed on, has been offered by Meriwether L. Baxter, Jr., of West Hartford, Conn. He modestly calls it the Baxter-Selassie coup and generously gives all credit for its discovery to his mother and grandmother who, he says, employ it with great success. Or, perhaps, he's just trying to shunt the responsibility. The situation, for which you must be on the alert, is as follows:

Dummy.
West. East.
K 10 A 7
Declarer.
Q J x x x
"A low card is led from dummy," Mr. Baxter writes, "and East, who believes 'a trick is a trick,' puts on the ace. Any ordinary declarer would now play low, but not this one. He quickly turns to West, starts a heated discussion on the Ethiopian crisis, and suddenly planks down the queen. West, seeing the lady and knowing one should always cover an honor with an honor, puts on his king while he's still trying to pronounce 'Haile Selassie' and 'Addis Ababa.' By his brilliant play South thus loses only one trick in the suit. Simple, isn't it?"

Very. "Simple" is the word. Mr. Baxter writes on: "You may use this extraordinary play in your next book without charge." I refuse to be outdone. I will not wait for the next book. I present it to you all now, at the same price.

When to Hold Up.

In today's hand, proper no-trump bidding and the correct way to play a no-trump hand are illustrated. An opening bid of one no-trump shows 4-3-3-3 distribution. Therefore, the responding hand with a strong six-card suit usually should raise the no-trump rather than show his suit, for he knows the small cards of his suit will win tricks at no-trump. In playing a no-trump hand (or any hand) declarer should think only of his contract and not try for extra tricks until the contract is assured.

NORTH.
♠ 10 6 4
♥ A Q 8 6 5
♣ 10 7 5 4 3
SOUTH.
♠ A K J 5
♥ A J 3
♦ J 10 4
♣ K Q 6

The bidding (both sides vulnerable):

East. South. West. North.
Opening lead, club 5 by West.
North did not bother to show his diamond suit. Knowing that South had at least three, he felt sure that his hand could produce five or six tricks at no-trump. Since South's bid shows four honor tricks, the nine tricks needed for game were in sight and North immediately bid the game. In the play West opened a club and East played the jack. South played the six, not winning. He could see that he must finesse for the king of diamonds into East's hand, and he hoped that when East got the lead he would have no club left to lead. By ducking the first club trick and winning the second, West brought this situation about. He lost the diamond finesse, but East had to lead a spade or a heart, either of which suits South controlled with the ace.

Today's Question.
Question: Is it necessary to bid any hand which contains a biddable suit and three honor tricks?
Answer: No. A hand with three bare honor tricks and only a four-card biddable suit occasionally may be passed. An example is spade A 4 3, heart 7 6 2, diamond A K 4 2, club 9 6 5. With any added values or with any distribution other than 4-3-3-3 it is better to make an opening bid on even so weak a hand as this.

STEALING a bit of thunder from Ann Gillis' announcement of details of the big birthday broadcast from WJSV Sunday night, which will be found on The Sunday Post radio pages, comes word from the National Broadcasting Co. that Lansing Hatfield will represent WMAL and the "Velvet Voices" will sing as WRC's representatives.

WJSV is observing its third birthday anniversary as a C. B. S. station with a full hour show Sunday at 11 p. m. And, of course, Washington's other studios were invited to come over and help observe the occasion.

Presentation of "Velvet Voices" is, interestingly enough, in the nature of a scoop for WJSV. "Velvet Voices" hasn't been heard as yet as a WRC attraction. The group makes its debut next week over at the N. B. C. camp. Hatfield (as readers of this poor space certainly must know by this time) is one of the finalists in the Eddie Duchin "radio open" contest scheduled for next Tuesday night.

Miss Gillis has provided full details of the "birthday party" for Sunday Post readers. Yes, Arch and Arthur will be there.

C. B. S. New York studios have had their faces lifted and their acoustics toned. And tonight a special full-hour program (WJSV, at 10) will demonstrate the fidelity in transmitting sound which resulted. A parade of 11 different acts from 11 different studios will attempt to illustrate to the radio audience why a symphony sounds best from one particular studio, while a blues singer does better in another.

Among the artists scheduled are Victor Bay and a symphony, Freddie Rich and a dance band, H. V. Kallenborn, Mary Eastman and Eugene Dubois, violinist. The broadcast gives C. B. S. an opportunity to present Dr. E. E.

Free, electrical engineer, who was chief consultant in the alterations. Dr. Free will move from studio to studio explaining technical details so you will understand what has been done. Finally, a sound effects demonstration will be made through the presentation of dramatic scenes.

Highlights of the day:
Symphonic—Koussevitzky and Boston Symphony, WMAL, at 8:15.
Author: Walter B. Pitkin carries a mike over the country for material for "We Americans" (tonight from Kansas City), human-interest stuff, WJSV, at 8.
Football: Notre Dame-Pittsburgh, WJSV; North Carolina-Georgia, WRC; Army-Harvard, WMAL; Manhattan-Holy Cross, WOL.
Rubinoff: Premier of music show with Cantor's long-time orchestra leader, Jan Pearce, tenor, and Virginia Rea, soprano, WRC, at 9.

Sun Dial: Uncle Arthur Godfrey does his early morning turn from the Peoples Radio Grill (Arch McDonald's studio), WJSV, 7 to 9 a. m.
Magic Eye—The same Godfrey begins another weekly show featuring Victor recordings, WJSV, at 7.
Beery: Presents Jackie Cooper and himself in scene from their latest picture, "Chateau," WRC, at 8:30. Also Evelyn Laye.
Hit Parade: "Cheek to Cheek" is public's No. 1 choice for the week, followed by "I'm in the Mood for Love," in the "Hit Parade," WRC, at 8.

Having devoted this much attention to Godfrey and McDonald, it might just as well be mentioned they have been selected as masters of ceremonies and "king of the carnival" for the 1935 Halloween celebration. So sayeth the announcement from the Greater National Capital Committee. Just what McDonald will do as a "carnival king" will bear investigating, methinks.

THE NEW FORD V-8 FOR 1936

Why do we say The New Ford V-8 for 1936?

What is new about it?
Of course, the newest engine in the low-price car field is still the V-8 engine. Since Ford made it available to all car users (keeping it as economical as cars with fewer cylinders) the Ford V-8 has been the newest engine on the market, and remains the newest for 1936.

You may buy a car on minor "talking points"—some specially advertised feature "with the car thrown in"—but, after all, it is the engine you buy when you buy a car. Hence we put the engine first.

Other new points about the car make a long list.

Its lines are much more beautiful. The hood is longer and sweeps forward over the distinctive new radiator grille, giving the car a length and grace that are instantly impressive. The fenders are larger, with a wide flare. Horns are concealed in circular grilles beneath the headlamps. New steel wheels.

Ford upholstery—always of sterling quality and excellent taste—is rich and enduring. The appointments of the car have a new touch of refinement. There is no question about the increased beauty of the Ford V-8 for 1936.

In more practical matters, many improvements have been made—Steering is made easier by a new steering gear ratio. The cooling system circulates 5½ gallons of water through a new, larger radiator. Natural thermo-siphon action is assisted by two centrifugal water pumps. New louvers permit a rapid air-flow around the engine.

Easier, quieter shifting of Ford gears—The gear shift lever now travels a shorter distance.

The two qualities you want in brakes—Brakes that stop the car with ease and certainty. Ford Super-Safety Brakes of the long-tested, fool-proof, mechanical design.

Safety—as always—in the electrically welded genuine steel body. Safety Glass all around at no extra cost. Hundreds have written grateful letters because this glass has protected the safety of their families.

A car you can drive without strain all day, if you like, in city or country. Steady, holds the road, responds to the driver's touch like a well-trained horse. You don't have to "push" or "fight" the Ford V-8—driver and car easily get on terms of good understanding with each other.

An engine has much to do with the roominess of a car. Very much indeed. A long engine uses up car space. The compact V-8 engine permits much of the ordinary engine space to be used by passengers.

It really is a great car in every way, this 1936 Ford V-8—the finest, safest, most dependable Ford car ever built. Now on display by Ford dealers.

Solution of the Complicated Farm Problem Will Have to Be Found in Domestic Market.

By Samuel Crowther.

It is recognized by thoughtful farmers—and, although they do not make a great noise, they are in the majority—that the farm is in a state of transition. Under most circumstances, economic transitions are made quickly and effectively by natural methods, but the Government has for so long mixed into farm matters and so thoroughly messed up the situation that it is in the public interest for the Government to aid in the transition from an emergency which is Government-created.

The Farm Board complicated the emergency, while the AAA added a further lot of new and highly original complications. The ability of a governmental regulatory body to bring about chaos seems unlimited—the more especially if the motives be high. The Interstate Commerce Commission and the Federal Reserve System are cases in point. Under regulation everyone is right or is wrong together. It is fine when we are right, but devastating when the procession is directed up the wrong street.

The principal Government error with respect to the farm has been the provision of too much credit. While industry generally has been getting rid of debt through retiring mortgages and building up working capital out of earnings instead of borrowing it, the farmers have been encouraged to fund and enlarge their debts. At the same time, their communities have also been taking on debts which add to their taxes and further increase the fixed charges. The taxes are more serious than the debts. Taking the 1929 figures, the farms were worth $57,604,000, against which stood a mortgage of $9,000,000,000. This is not a heavy indebtedness, and of it individual farmers held $1,345,000,000, and other individuals, including retired farmers, held $1,453,000,000.

But the proportion of mortgaged farms is great enough to cause hardship when prices are low for several years on end. The refinancing of many of these mortgages has not helped, for commonly the income has not been great enough even to pay taxes.

The reclamation projects have brought in land that was not needed, while at the same time the agricultural services have been teaching better farming. The result is not an excess plant capacity, if we consider the theoretical dietary needs of the Nation on a normal income, but a wrongly arranged capacity. Our Nation is about 40 per cent below the point where its economic activity ought to be, and that is bound to show up in the people's selection of foods.

And while the Administration has been trying to raise certain farm prices, other acts of the Administration are steadily diminishing the buying power of the farm dollar. The NRA simply raised industrial prices; the Wagner labor act and the Guffey coal bill seek to do what the NRA was not allowed to do. The social security act taxes the wages of every industrial product the farmer uses, and these taxes are bound to turn up in prices. But neither the farmers nor the small dealers who supply him get any benefit from the bill, for they do not come within the provisions of the insurance. A full examination of the social security act discloses that, no matter what else it may be, it is not a social security measure.

AGRICULTURE is not something on which one can put a finger and say: "This is it." There are all sorts of farms and farmers and they are not as the politicians would have us believe, a bloc vote.

The greatest part of our agriculture is designed to supply the domestic market—poultry and eggs, dairy products, fresh vegetables, fruits and nuts are primarily domestic. Cotton is an export crop to about half of its volume—or was. Wheat and pork products have foreign markets to an extent. Supremacy in the world's agricultural exports, however, is not something to be sought for or to be proud of. The two requisites are cheap land and cheap labor.

We could raise cane sugar as well as Cuba, but we cannot import armies of half-savage Haitians to cut the cane. A mechanical cane cutter would change the sugar map. We can grow silk as well as Japan, but fortunately we have no workers at Japanese wages. We know much more about cotton growing than anyone else, but some of our cotton land is running out, taxes are high and even though the sharecroppers work for an income at the subsistence line, we shall not be able long to compete on price with foreign cottons unless someone perfects a mechanical cotton picker and restricts it to American use.

AGRICULTURAL exports, unless achieved through American mechanization, must diminish and finally vanish. If we invent new machines and export them, we shall help the machine trade, but not agriculture. The end of British textile supremacy have in sight when the export of textile machinery was permitted. The exports of our automobiles are bound to decline, relatively at first and then absolutely, for Japan is learning to use American machinery and Russia is trying to learn. Exports of farm products can be used as a stop gap, but they are only that.

We are high-cost producers. Foreign markets are for low-cost

Broadway

Thinking Out Loud.

New York, Oct. 18.

Broadway columnists become bald-headed at an early age from taking bows. . . . Self-imposed bows. . . . Yet I remember one night, when I sat with Jack Kirkland, an hour after his "Tobacco Road" had opened. . . . "It will be an artistic success, Jack," I consoled him, "but the theme is too ugly for commercial success. People simply won't go to look at it." . . . That was my opinion. . . . But the play has now been performed for twenty-two months. . . . In New York, it has grossed close to $1,000,000. . . . At Chicago, in six weeks, it grossed $22,000. . . . On the Coast, it has grossed $220,000. . . . Well, I always said it wouldn't last!

Wonder how much unhappiness the amateur hours of radio have caused? . . . The reason I ask is that I'm getting hundreds of letters from youngsters who have won contests on small radio stations. . . . "What do we do now, Mr. Sullivan?" each of them writes, and the question is a wall of distress in a wilderness of fractured hopes. . . . Jarred out of the usual routine of their ordinary lives, these youngsters get a blinding, overpowering vision of radio success and a pot of gold.

For one brief moment, they are shoved forward into the spotlight to play their musical cups, or imitate a cow—and then they are dropped cold. . . . The result is that they become discontented with the safe-and-sane little jobs they held, and desperately they query: "What do we do now?"

The answer is that they must bind up their hurts and wounds, and resume the lives they lived, before the amateur hours gave them one intoxicating draught of heady wine. . . . Right now, the sting seems unbearable, but time is a great healer. . . . Years from now, these disappointed kids will be able to hear a song—without wincing.

As predicted in this column several days back, Sid Solomon has sold his Central Park Casino lease to Jack and Charlie. . . . They take possession on Monday. . . . The lease has been one of the most bitterly attacked city documents that ever came out of City Hall. . . . Jimmy Walker, as Mayor, gave his friend Solomon a ten-year lease on this chateau, situated on public property, and Jimmy's opponents made the most of it. . . . Solomon hung on as long as he could under the withering blast of damaging Page 1 stories, but he could hold on no longer. . . . Jack and Charlie will pay him 7 per cent of the gross intake for the next three years and a halfproducers. We can become low-cost producers only by revolutionary farm mechanization or by bringing down the standard of farm living to meet foreign competition. The time element bars the first way, and the second way is wholly repugnant. So any solution will have to be found in the domestic market.

if they can sustain their rights to the lease when it comes to court.

Jack and Charlie, one tall and one short, are the most successful club operators in the swanky belt. . . . During prohibition, they coined twin fortunes by serving the best liquor in town and exceptionally fine food. . . . With terrific political connections, they lasted out every storm kicked up by the prohibitionists. . . . Their place became a rendezvous for Hollywood stars, producers and society, and they were smart enough to emphasize the exclusiveness of their place by rigidly maintaining the scrutiny of those who rapped at the door and peered through a hole-in-the-door. . . . Remember the speakeasy holes-in-the-door and membership ship cards? . . . Specially built elevators enabled them to move their liquor to inaccessible places when the raiders arrived, which was just often enough to save the revenue agents' faces. . . . I imagine Jack and Charlie are worth $2,000,000 in cash. . . . The experiment was noble in motive, if not downright generous, to them.

Flash Scroveney devotes another full column to explain that he is not afraid of me. . . . Remember Max Baer? . . . But Scroveney can't change the facts. . . . The survey was made in February, 1934, almost two years ago. . . . The only thing which the survey proved is that the stronger a paper, the lower the rating of any individual feature in it. . . . The weaker a paper, the higher the rating of any individual writer. . . . My rating of 366 (Pages 47 and 50) would have flattered me if the late Will Rogers hadn't received a rating of 12. . . . I knew then that something was cockeyed. . . . So, instead of being elated at a ranking that placed

Rebuilding of Wing At Hospital Pushed

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Clarksburg, W. Va., Oct. 18.—A new $100,000 fireproof wing may be constructed soon at the Weston State hospital as a result of Gov. H. G. Kump's decision to contribute $40,000 from the chief executive's emergency fund to match $60,000 from WPA funds, which he and Rep. Andrew Edmondson hope Washington authorities will advance.

Edmondson and members of the state board of control are in Washington to present the proposal. Many of the 350 patients who were made homeless two weeks ago when the wing burned, are still being kept at Jackson's Mill, under surveillance of a national guard company.

Three Theft Suspects Promise to Pay, Freed

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Oct. 18.—Three Cumberland, Md., men, charged by railroad police with having stolen 25 bags of apples from the C. M. Solemberger Orchard near Sunbo Yards, near here, and to have taken them to their homes on a Baltimore & Ohio freight train, were released yesterday by a justice here after arraignment had been made to pay for the apples. They had served two days in jail for train-riding. The trio gave the names of Kenneth Rosebaugh, Elsworth Dickel and Shannon Jones.

They were apprehended in the Cumberland yards as they unloaded the apples from a box car of a westbound freight.

Term Begun by Woman Convicted 10 Years Ago

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Lynchburg, Va., Oct. 18.—Lillie Milton, 60, who was convicted in the Municipal Court here in 1925 and given a fine and jail sentence on charge of violating the State prohibition law, has just started serving the sentence.

She left the city about the time of her conviction and only returned Wednesday to be picked up almost immediately under the old charge.

Helping Mothers to Cut Down On Family's Colds

Unique Formula for Nose and Throat Helps to Prevent Colds—And to Throw Off Head Colds at the Start. SOON CLEARS "STUFFY HEAD"

Mothers are so often worried about their families' colds that they find special comfort in this unique aid for preventing colds—Vicks Vapo-rinol.

Especially designed for nose and upper throat, where most colds start, Vicks Vapo-rinol stimulates the functions provided by Nature—in the nose—to prevent colds, and to throw off head colds in the early stages. Used in time—at the first sniffle, sneeze or nasal irritation—just a few drops up each nostril—Vicks Vapo-rinol helps to avoid many colds.

Where irritation has led to a clogged-up nose (a stuffy head cold or nasal catarrh) Vicks Vapo-rinol spreads through the nasal passages—reduces swollen membranes—clears clogging mucus—brings comforting relief.

A Practical Guide for Mothers

Each year, more and more families are being helped to fewer colds, shorter colds and milder colds by following Vicks Plan for Better Control of Colds. Vicks Plan has been clinically tested by practicing physicians, and further proved in everyday home use throughout the country. Full details of the Plan come in each package of Vicks Vapo-rinol.

AMERICA SPEAKS

THE NATIONAL WEEKLY POLL OF PUBLIC OPINION

FOR THREE years the American Government has spent billions of dollars for relief and recovery. Does the American citizen think his Government is spending too much money for this purpose? Does he think the expenditure is proper? Does he think lavish Federal relief has helped or hindered business recovery?

TOMORROW, in The Washington Post, the American Institute of Public Opinion gives the answer to these pertinent questions . . . accurate . . . authoritative answers learned through a scientific, unbiased national poll which includes every county in every State in which men and women of every political belief and every economic status participated.

THIS QUESTION was asked of a cross-section of the American electorate:

"Do you think expenditures by the Government for relief and recovery are

"() Too little? () Too great? () About right?"

GET THE ANSWER in tomorrow's Washington Post. Order your copy now! Phone NATIONAL 4200.

AMERICA SPEAKS is the voice of Main Street, U. S. A. It is the voice of the lumberjack in the Pacific Northwest, the Hollywood extra, the tycoon of Wall Street, the Texas cotton grower, the Kentucky mountaineer, the bathing beauty of Florida, the New England schoolmarm, the lone prospector in the Colorado mountains, the toiler in field and mill and store throughout the land . . .

Know what the people who live on both sides of this Main Street are thinking and you know the political future of public figures and public questions in the United States.

THE NATIONAL WEEKLY POLL OF PUBLIC OPINION will tell you how the people feel about Government spending for relief and recovery. Are these expenditures too high? Are they too low? Are they about right? The trend in public sentiment about Government spending will be reported for a period of nearly two years.

AMERICA SPEAKS will poll the country on suggested planks in party platforms. Week by week it will present the popular viewpoint on such current issues as the Constitution, the Supreme Court, Government Control of Business and Industry, War Munitions, Social Security, Prohibition.

WASHINGTON'S HOME NEWSPAPER

Film and Stage Study Evolves New Make-up

Moderately Priced Products Come in Wide Range of Flattering Shades.

By Ruth Anna Davis.

THIS IS THE STORY of an enterprising beauty authority and creator of a widely known line of cosmetics. It is not the story of her life and rise to acclaim, but simply a brief tale of her newest cosmetic discovery, of what it does and how it may be used.

Six or a month ago she became extremely interested in stage and screen make-up. Her course of research led her to Hollywood, where she made an intensive study of the products used by the actresses while they were working. And then back to New York and Broadway, and a probe into the complexities of stage make-up. With her brain feeding hungrily on all the bits of knowledge gleaned during this investigation, she went into confab with her chemists, with the result that she now presents to an eager feminine world (which, by the way, knew she was up to something) a perfected line of "screen and stage make-up."

It is ideal for amateur or private theatricals, for that extra special party, masquerade, or gala evening occasion, for professional or amateur photography. Since water does not affect this amazing make-up it is marvelous for swimming, the beach and active sports. It is perspiration proof, light and heat proof, and clings for hours without renewal. It will not clog the pores or harm the skin—and is so pure that plastic surgeons sometimes use it directly over open wounds!

Foundations—powders—rouges—special eye make-up—they all come in a wide range of lovely flattering shades. Everything from the "liner" (eye shadow) to the lips—they are extremely moderate in price.

Small Evening Bags.

MOST OF US would like to have an evening bag to match each evening frock but most of us content ourselves with one or depending on our budget infatuated. Now, however, there's no reason why we shouldn't have several, thanks to a downtown store. There you'll find small evening bags, made of attractive glistening brocades for only 99 cents. They're just about large enough for a powder puff, some change, a comb, your hanky, and keys.

Hygienic Service.

THE OTHER DAY this letter came: "Dear Miss Davis, is there a hygienic service in any of the Washington stores where personal items are grouped together and intelligently presented? If there is such a department there is a trained person to charge who might be capable of presenting 'facts' to my young daughter."

Probably many of you have wondered about this same thing. The answer is yes. Only a few days ago a large store here installed a hygienic department which is under the supervision of a young woman who discusses with both adults and children any number of personal questions. Here she presents the new and approved hygienic merchandise with which every modern woman should be familiar. Here also are deodorants, depilatories, and a variety of other such items.

Here, too, small booklets written by medical men may be obtained free. One of these is especially fine for the young miss.

Rule Greeting Cards.

DON'T FORGET that October is the month to take advantage of a 10 per cent discount on the engraving of your personal greeting cards for Christmas. Washingtonians are fortunate to have a place where they may buy cards of the American Artists Group, Inc. The work of 35 of the leading artists in this country are represented in this interesting array of fine cards. The originals from which the cards are made will be on display later in the season.

Call Ruth Anna Davis, of The Washington Post, National 4200, Extension 323, for further information, or write, including stamped, addressed envelope.

PLEASANT HOMES

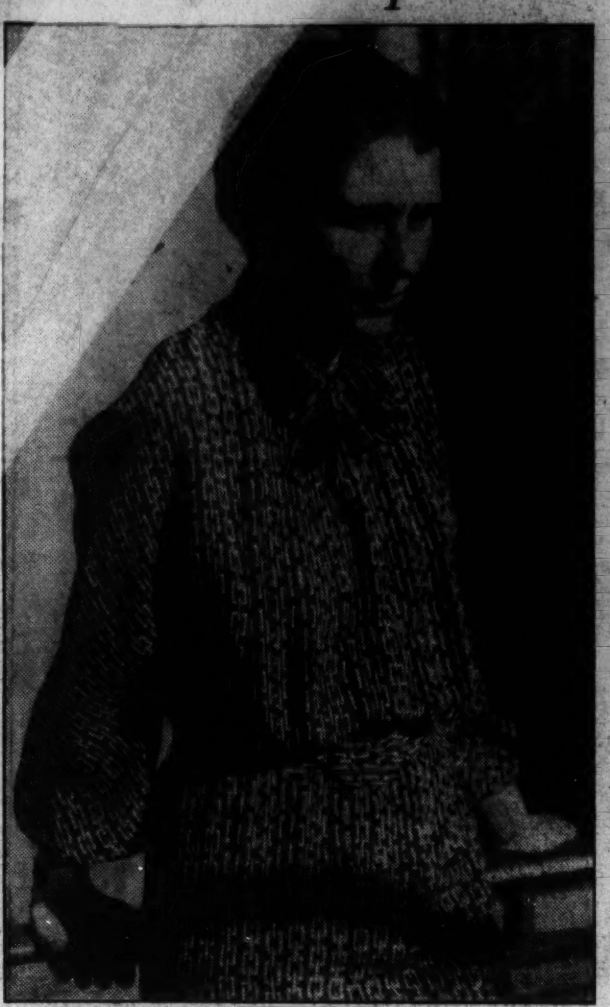

By Elizabeth MacRae Boykin.

WHEN A GIRL GOES AWAY to college, the little extras that will make her room a popular hang-out are pretty important. After all many a weighty question of life and love and liberty will be debated here and a girl needs the importance of having a place where she can sit on the small of her back and bone for exams in deep comfort.

E. B. WRITES: I am to be a freshman this year at college and will have to furnish my room which faces east and is 9 by 12 feet 4 inches. Besides the regular college furniture, all dark brown, I'm taking with me an easy chair in brown patterned chintz, a little maple table and a purple bridge lamp. I have to supply a rug, curtains and bedspread. What colors should I use for these and for odd cushions? I have $25 to spend.

ANSWER: Why don't you have jade chintz draped over ivory glass curtains... then a bedspread of brown (because it will stand the most sitting on) with jade welting and all jade cushions. I think rug rugs will probably be the best choice for your budget, though hooked rugs would be nice, too, if you can pick up some inexpensive ones. And maybe you could find a jade or a yellow pottery tea set. The things I have mentioned can all be managed within your $25 allowance.

General Method to End Slums Held Impractical

MRS. ELIZABETH WOOD.

Executive Director of Chicago Housing Council, Here for Parley, Says Each City Has Its Individual Problem.

By Emma Perley Lincoln.

SUCCESSFUL accomplishment of slum clearance is an individual problem in each separate city, according to Miss Elizabeth Wood, executive director of the Metropolitan Housing Council in Chicago and secretary of the Illinois State Housing Board. Miss Wood, who is also FWA Housing representative for Chicago, is in Washington for the Joint National Conference on Housing, in session at the Washington Hotel.

"A cut and dried plan designed to be adaptable to any town where there are slums, would never do for Chicago," Miss Wood said, "as there are too many ramifications and correlating interests."

The only successful plan, imported from outside, Miss Wood thinks, is the one which will gear in with what any given city already has in mind, and this the Federal agencies emphasizing housing are attempting to do, she said.

Miss Wood said that the 35 members of the housing council in Chicago believe the housing problem there and elsewhere, is one which will ultimately be solved by private enterprise.

Makeup of Council.

The movement there, according to Miss Wood, is in the hands of official representatives from agencies whose business is in some way vitally concerned with housing, that is the organization of real estate men, the mortgage banker's association, improvement associations, building trade unions, building contractor and building material associations, as well as top men from the field of architects and engineers. Then as a means of leaving this association a membership of the council includes civic associations, the council of social agencies and some women's groups.

"At this point," Miss Wood said, "it would not be possible to obtain the support of this council as a whole for any long term Federal Housing program, if it involved Federal subsidy, Federal power of eminent domain, or the continuance of Federal activities now carried on by the PWA Housing Division."

Miss Wood believes the greatest need in the housing program is for careful and conscientious planning, and that the greatest danger is in rushing in too rapidly, accomplishing a result which will be inadequate and futile in the end.

"We have just started on the first phase of our plan for slum clearance," Miss Wood said, "and now that we have succeeded in raising buildings covering an area of about 200 acres, level with the ground, we are confronted with the question—what is this land to be used for?"

Common Difficulty.

This and other phases of the housing problem are common to all cities, and in spite of the fact that each case is individual, Miss Wood believes all municipalities attempting slum clearance have this difficulty in common.

"The cost to the city of the so-called filtering out process and the migration of people is becoming generally recognized," Miss Wood declared, "and forms a problem which must be faced."

"Many opponents of subsidy for low-cost housing are desperately agitated by the fear that the families unhoused by the demolition program may move into better areas, creating new slums, and while many of us feel the answer will be some form of subsidy, it is too soon to make a statement on that."

Visit Colonial Village.

Miss Wood said the first Federal-built housing project she had ever actually seen, it was her pleasure to view yesterday, when with other members of the conference, she visited the Colonial Village, built across the Potomac in Virginia by the Federal Housing Administration as a medium-cost apartment project.

Miss Wood brings to her work in the slum clearance field a fortunate combination of experience. For, while she started as instructor of English at Vassar—the youngest member of the faculty at the time—she had two years as publicity director for an established firm in the building industry concerned in "Better Housing" and two years in social service work. On the one hand she visualizes how housing normally operates, and on the other is conversant with the kinds of families to be benefited from slum clearance and resultant rehousing.

Wardrobe Cost For Debutantes Put at $1,000

By the Associated Press.

THE DEBUTANTES of the Capital need spend no more than $1,000, apiece on their wardrobes for the season just now getting under way.

That is the expert opinion of Mrs. William Laird Dunlop, a social secretary who helps the debutantes.

She said today she'd known deb to spend $2,000 or $3,000 for clothes, but she always advises against it, since those spending more than $1,000 "have no better time and make no better impression."

She recommends for each debutante a black evening gown, one white evening gown, and a few pretty evening gowns in color; one very smart tailored suit for luncheon and morning events; several pretty and informal afternoon gowns for tea dances; smart shoes and accessories.

"Cleverness with the needle often counts more than great expenditure," Mrs. Dunlop said. "One of the best dressed deb of this season is lucky indeed in having a talented mother who has really enjoyed making almost every stitch of her daughter's wardrobe."

Coming-out balls normally cost anywhere from $500 to $1,500, though Mrs. Dunlop has helped with some running as high as $8,000. She's also seen as high as $2,000 worth of flowers purchased for a single debut, but that's the rare exception.

The coming-out and going-on of the deb now have the social right of way here. By November 1 they will be going at a terrific pace.

Overstretched Tissue Impairs Lung Function

Serious Trouble May Result If the Circulation Is Embarrassed.

By Dr. Irving S. Cutter.

WHEN we consider the tremendous job that the lungs are called on to perform and the quiet, modest way in which they function, we may well question why there is not more lung disease. The structures present the largest surface of the body to which the outside air is accessible, and the extreme delicacy of the air sacs renders this tissue unusually susceptible to poisonous gases, toxins from disease, and bacteria themselves.

Normal breathing and hence an adequate supply of oxygen to the blood, depends upon maintaining the chambers of the lungs in such a condition that a proper exchange of gases—oxygen and carbon dioxide—can occur. Therefore, the air sacs must preserve their elastic character; that is, to be able to expand and contract with each breath.

Occasionally we overstretch the lungs. This is sometimes foolishly occasioned by unnecessary coughing, in which the exit of the air is shut off for a moment in order to produce a propelling effect in raising mucus. Thus violent coughing or great muscular effort, when the lungs are inflated, may, through pressure, bring about dilatation of the tissue inclosing the air spaces.

The symptoms are those of a chronic bronchitis. In fact, inflammatory changes along the bronchi and in the air sacs themselves usually precede or accompany the condition. There is a chronic cough, sometimes with severe paroxysms and profuse expectoration. The cough is explosive and because of its oft-repeated character the patient's face may become deeply congested or even cyanotic (bluish). There is generally great difficulty in breathing and the struggle for air is often pathetic.

Symptom May Be Serious.

The symptom is always annoying and may be serious if the circulation is embarrassed. We can understand that when lung tissue is overstretched the capillaries are damaged or obliterated, the whole resulting in improper functioning of the lungs. Less carbon dioxide is excreted and less oxygen is absorbed. This leads to labored breathing and cyanosis.

Careful management is imperative. Afflicted individuals should, if possible, live in an atmosphere free from dust and smoke. Some form of mild, regular exercise should be prescribed and the diet is important. No individual with chronic emphysema should attempt to eat a full meal or loaf up with fluids.

As any sort, small, frequent feedings give great comfort. A chair similar to the old Morris chair, should be provided for rest, and some patients prefer to sleep in this semi-reclining posture. Proper remedies for the cough should be prescribed, and in many cases potassium iodide is used with good effect.

Excellent results have followed the use of a firm abdominal binder that extends upward over the lower ribs. As a result, coughing is reduced, the paroxysms are shortened and there is far less exhaustion than when the chest and abdomen are not properly supported.

Rembrandt Etching Methods Still Used, Mrs. Minnie Briggs, D. C. Artist, Notes

A recent etching by Minnie L. Briggs portrays the famous Sidney Lanier oak tree at Brunswick, Glynn County, Ga.

Her Work to Be on View at Pen League Studio Tea Tomorrow.

By Hope Ridings Miller.

MOST TYPES of art have changed drastically in form and method during the last three centuries. But etching is done much the same way with a striving for the same effect as it was in 1682 when Rembrandt Van Rijn made a small portrait head of his mother, his earliest dated etching—a masterly achievement.

Mrs. Minnie L. Briggs, Washington etcher, mentioned this yesterday at her studio of the League of American Pen Women at the Burlington Hotel, where a number of her etchings will be on display each afternoon until November and will be viewed tomorrow afternoon by guests invited to a tea at the studio.

"About the only difference between the method used by Rembrandt and Whistler, compared with the method followed today, is that they worked with copper plates exclusively, while modern etchers occasionally use aluminum plates," Mrs. Briggs explained.

She Prefers Dry-Point.

She employs both in her work, and uses both dry-point and acid in making her pictures. She feels dry-point gives a softer, richer effect and is particularly fond of this method in interpreting "trees in the wind, or on a rainy day," she said.

She is one of the three women in the world whose etchings of wild flowers have attracted wide attention. The other two are Miss Katharine Cameron, of Edinburgh, Scotland, who has exhibited her work here at the Library of Congress, and Miss Bertha Jacques, of Chicago, whose etchings were on display at the Smithsonian Institution two years ago.

Mrs. Briggs' work is distinctive in that her etchings generally "represent a mood rather than a photographical portrayal. I am particularly fond of making etchings of the smaller things of nature," she said.

"While I am out driving, or walking in the woods, I see something that makes a strong impression on me. After I go home, I sketch it from memory."

Working on Tree Series.

The close cylindrical spike of a marsh plant blowing away in the wind; a red wing poised on a bending cat-tail; cherry blossoms in the moonlight (not a whole tree, but a single branch with one or two blossoms); some apples ripening in a cluster; a single butterfly above a wild flower; a twig swaying beneath a puff of wind; a small group of trees bending away from the force of a gale—all these strike her fancy and eventually hang on her walls as finished etchings.

Within the last year she has been working on a series of historic trees of Washington and Maryland. A number of these, including the sa-graphical portrayal. I am particularly fond of making etchings of the smaller things of nature," she said. "While I am out driving, or walking in the woods, I see something that makes a strong impression on me. After I go home, I sketch it from memory."

affable line oak, leaning low—Thus—with your favor—soft, with a reverent hand, (Not lightly touching your person, lord of the land!) Bending your beauty aside, with a step I stand On the firm-packed sand, Free By a world of marsh, that borders a world of sea.

Discussing her representation of this, as well as other of her tree etchings, Mrs. Briggs mentioned that so long as she could remember, she had been interested in trees of every type. "In fact, my love of art springs directly from my love of nature in all its forms," she said.

Washington is especially rich in history, both present day and past. There are many fascinating places to see and to show our children. Seeing these places cannot help but inspire a child to keener interest and further study as well as bring out the relationship of the present to the past. Seeing Mount Vernon personally, for example, Washington cannot help but make the early history of our country more real if the old buildings, the slave quarters, the ancient methods of house-keeping and the difficulties of life in that day are compared with present methods. It is not enough to merely visit these interesting places. The parent, as guide for the child, should stimulate a curiosity which will build in the child's mind his own picture of how life was lived here in those early days.

Suggestions for Small Child.

For the small child who is interested in the here and now, there are buildings in the process of construction, fire stations, the zoo, markets full of food, dairies, bakeries, postoffices, railroads and bus stations and any number of fascinating every-day activities which are sources of information and education for the child, and without his limited horizon. The wharves are intriguing to young and old. Let the children buy some oysters right off the boat and talk with the men who have brought them in from the bay. If these youngsters can be interested in where their food comes from and how it gets here, they will be interested a little later in the same things in other countries. Here can be a real beginning of history and geography.

The test of a person's intelligence may be his ability to use his environment to the fullest. Let's be sure that we take advantage of our environment and that our children are given everything that Washington holds to stimulate a curiosity and a keener desire to seek knowledge of the present and the past.

New Velveteen Leads the Fall Fashion Parade; Lops Years Off Wearer's Age With Greatest Ease

By Amos Parrish.

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—Plaudits for velveteen! It's gone fall 1935 with a vengeance. Dashes to the 9 o'clock class... lunches in town... perches at cocktail bars... goes dinner dancing and theatering of a frosty autumn evening. All with decided verve and assurance!

It takes to the military idea like a duck to water... strides along in the bright October sunshine tailored, fitted and be-frogged... dashing enough for a young cadet.

The lass at the left of our illustration sports a two-piece velveteen with versatile ideas. Of a morning, she slings a sporty scarf carelessly about her throat, or wears a tailored blouse. Of an afternoon, she chooses a frilly blouse, or a scarf of shiny lame. Still later, a lame blouse will dress up the whole outfit enough for the smartest cocktail bar in town.

Boysish Fashions.

It's a season of young, boysish fashions, and velveteen is right in its element. Smartly simple as a schoolboy's outfit are many of the velveteens that you see gadding about town (or country) these days. They go in for quantities of buttons, pockets, high little-boy collars, and loop years off their wearer's age with the greatest of ease!

For evening, velveteen discards its little-boy notions and goes in for glamor. With pointed mediaeval sleeves, long, sweeping lines (observe the sketch), and brilliant, jewel-studded bells. Dresses dramatic enough for an opening night... elegant enough for a mediaeval princess.

Rich Autumn Shades.

The new velveteens lead the fall fashion parade with their spirited colors! There's not a drab one in a carload. They borrow the rich shades of frost-touched autumn leaves... alert colors like royal purple, and military reds and blues. So velveteen writes colorful fashion headlines this fall!

Fair Enough

On Too Sporty Sports Writing.

New York, Oct. 18.

WITH puzzled interest I have observed in the last few years the development of a new style and a new interest in sport writing which indicates that the playing fields of the United States of America have been moved indoors and that the leaders of the world of sport are not active athletes but professional gamblers, press agents, ticket speculators, politicians, spendthrifts of the idle rich, whispering smut singers, riest show dancing ladies, police characters and common barflies. These are charming people, to be sure, and this note on a new phase in our life is submitted in the best of temper merely as a marker along the path of progress. It is a never-ending pleasure to study the personality of a night-side character who made a fortune laundering linen for his fellow man and often threatens, on good white newspaper, to buy a major league ball club with some of it. I am convulsed by the dry humor and dialect of the former pants prodder who became a bookmaker and have enjoyed a thousand whimsical items about a number of men whose pedigrees may be found at police headquarters, but not at Yale or even in the bulky files of the A. A. U.

Yet there is something lacking from the sport pages these days, and I think that what I refer to is an occasional mention of a competing athlete couched in the language of sport. It would be a pleasant change of pace to come upon a personal piece about a football player or golfer, or even a figure skater, written in terms which need not be uttered out of the side of the mouth.

Of course, young football players are likely to be busy or otherwise unavailable for interviews, and it may be that very often when they can be had they turn out to be inarticulate kids without spectacular personal traits which make for easy writing and casual reading. Moreover, it takes a deal of enterprise to go up the country to some college town and put in a pitcher-and-bowl hotel for days at a time to obtain this sort of material. And the stuff, when it is obtained, requires more careful and tactful handling and better writing than the night club type of sport story, because the school boys have not struck the pose of fiction characters so common in the figures who sit around the night clubs and delicatessens waiting to be celebrated in print.

If I might offer an opinion it would be that the reason for this new preference for the night side personnel and the gin mill locale is two-fold, the one following the other as the night day. First, many of our sport journalists have lost interest in sport and taken to night life, and second, as a result of that, they don't know enough about sport and sportsmen any more to permit even a plausible pretense.

It could be added that Mr. Damon Runyon, with his fiction stories and movies about the underworld of sport, the fight managers, horse painters and needlers and the sporting bootleggers of the prohibition era, has infected many of the younger writers with his own unique and robust slang and feeling. This is not unusual for most of us—remember a time a few years ago when the oncoming scribes were imitating H. L. Mencken's impudent manner and making a horrible mess of it. The originals have their virtue, but the imitations always are stuff to make men curse and weep. And the plague is never localized but spreads over the country, so that very soon there are a thousand flabby counterfeiters appearing in the dailies under the names of young aspirants who would do much better if they would just remember to be themselves.

A few years ago a whiff of the underworld was interesting relief from the innocent heroes and the austere virtue of fair competition between the lithe, lean bodies playing games singly, in pairs and in teams. But, like garlic, this element is something which is most effective when used in moderation. Like garlic, too, it is not enjoyable when taken straight.

I would like to remark while on this subject that one veteran sport writer of national prominence who has remained strictly a sport writer, having to the line always, Mr. Grantland Rice, who has been covering the athletes for more than 35 years. Mr. Rice seemed old fashioned for a while when the vogue for underworld sport copy was coming along because he continued to write about forward passes, the new tackles at Illinois, Tommy Armour's irons, the swimmers, archers, boxers and tennis athletes, strictly as athletes, and let the night life of sport alone. But there is no man in the country now who knows one-tenth as many actual players, past and present, and their records, styles and prospects, as well as the one man who has the greatest excuse to be sick of the whole business.

I find that my interest in band leaders, radio artists and ladies who do a kooch under another name in the night club has been more than served by the minute reporting of the Broadway Journalists. When I turn the sport page I have a wish to know who won the ball game, how come and by how much. I am not seriously annoyed about it all. It is just something I thought I would mention.

Two More Thrillers

By
William Lyon Phelps

HERE are two new detective stories that kept me in a state of continuous excitement until I had finished them; they are both written with cleverly contrived situations and there is enough action to satisfy even my chronic thirst.

"Murder in Black," by Francis Grierson, has a most agreeable young detective-inspector named Phelps. This is my only reason for recommending the novel, but it is quite sure that every member of the family would be glad to claim this young policeman, as he is such a fine fellow. In fact, all the detectives, policemen, and Scotland Yard officials in this story are very attractive gentlemen.

Mr. Grierson, Irish in birth and Scotch in descent, has written a long list of novels, and his name is now a guarantee that any book by him will be well written. But of all his stories, I think "Murder in Black" is by far the most thrilling; and I was astonished at the final revelation of the identity of the villain.

"Murder in Black" is a British novel, with English aristocrats playing important parts. "Murder at the Piano" is an American novel, with American aristocrats living in the most exclusive section of Manhattan Island. The author of this story is George Bagby. The publishers inform us that he was a famous college football player a few years ago. He has had considerable newspaper experience; and I regard this book, "Murder at the Piano," as decidedly original. It is certainly exciting and here again, the identity of the murderer is well concealed. I will not give away the plot; that would be dastardly. But some of the finest piano playing in the world is done by great pianists after they have died.

Special Correspondence of The Post,
Ottawa.

ON October 14 the Canadian people cast their ballots in a Federal election and with them not only pronounced in most emphatic terms the doom of the Conservative Ministry of Mr. R. B. Bennett, but also gave to the Liberal party led by Mr. W. L. Mackenzie King the most decisive mandate ever conferred upon a Canadian party. Out of 245 seats in the House of Commons, the Liberals, if half a dozen Independent Liberals and Liberal Progressives who will assuredly vote with them are counted, control 175 and they will therefore have a majority of at least 100 over any possible combination of opposition groups.

Moreover, the latter will be able to combine only on very rare occasions, as the 42 Conservatives who will constitute the official opposition are poles apart in their views from the Leftist groups, which will consist of 17 Social Crediters, 9 members of the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation Party and Mr. H. H. Stevens, the Conservative former minister who founded the Reconstruction Party and is its only representative elected.

Only in the two westernmost provinces, Alberta and British Columbia, did the Liberals fail to make sweeping gains and elect the great majority of their candidates, and, as a result, their strength cannot be described as sectional, as it has sometimes been in the past. As a result, Mr. Mackenzie King, who has now begun the task of forming a ministry, can construct an administration which has a broad national basis of support. In one sense the popular mandate given to the Liberal Party is as decisive as that accorded to the Democratic Party in the United States in 1932, but there will be one marked difference in the positions of the Roosevelt and the King administrations, inasmuch as whereas the Democratic Party is dominant in the Senate of the United States, the Canadian Senate is controlled by a Conservative majority of roughly two to one.

THE members of the Canadian Upper House are nominated for life by the government of the day and during the Bennett ministry's five years tenure of office the operations of mortality upon Liberal senators were so severe that Mr. Bennett, filling their places with Conservatives, was able to build up a commanding majority for his party, which is likely to retain control throughout the life of the new Parliament. Moreover, the Conservative Party in the Senate is led by former Premier Arthur Meighen, one of the ablest and most experienced politicians in Canada. Foreseeing the impending defeat of his party in the late election, he adopted a very shrewd course. He deliberately, although a member of the Bennett ministry, abstained from any participation in the campaign and is understood to have communicated his view to Premier Bennett that since the Senate was supposed to be an impartial body charged with the duty of revising legislation passed by the Commons, the leader of a senatorial majority, hostile to a ministry in power, would be in a much stronger position to advise the rejection or drastic amendment of government legislation, if he could not be accused of having opposed the policies on which it was based during the election campaign.

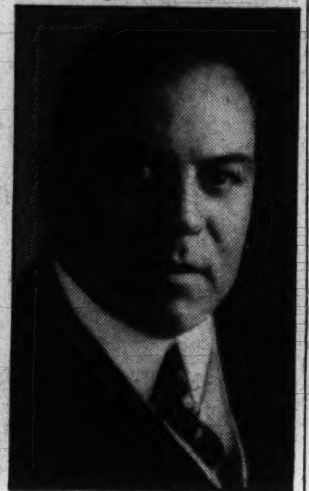

So Senator Meighen has left himself with a comparatively free hand to deal on its merits with any legislation that the incoming Liberal ministry may pass through the House of Commons and it can almost be taken for granted that he will use his majority to frustrate the plans of the Liberals to which they are definitely committed for bringing the Bank of Canada under government control.

But the Conservative ascendancy in the Senate may also have important consequences in connection with the project for the improvement of trade relations with the United States. Scant hopes have always been entertained in Canada that a high protectionist ministry like the Bennett government could ever make much headway in the negotiation of a satisfactory reciprocity agreement with the United States for the simple reason that they would not dare to offend their industrial supporters by offering the concessions to American manufactured products.

THESE the Roosevelt Administration was bound to demand in order to be able to show an attractive bargain to the American public and answer effectively the protests of farming and other interests, which would be annoyed by concessions to Canadian natural products. And all along the Canadian Liberals have contended that they were the only party capable of concluding a worthwhile trade agreement with the United States, because they had always favored reciprocity and had not accepted the idea as an opportunistic move in the political game and because their platform pledged them to lower the Canadian tariff duties.

Mr. Mackenzie King in a statement issued after the election declared among other things that his party was now armed with a definite mandate to negotiate a reciprocity treaty with the United States and that it would set about the task without delay. But the government, although it will possess a commanding majority in the Commons, will not have absolutely clear sailing for its tariff policy.

The Liberal leaders during their campaign pledged themselves to implement the tariff planks of the party platform by lowering the present scale of duties, which the Bennett ministry had raised to abnormally high levels. In addition, they promised to restore parliamentary control of the tariff by terminating the present arbitrary jurisdiction of customs officials and to sweep away a variety of what Mr. King described as "tariff excrescences." But in the industrial areas of eastern Canada they were careful to give assurances that their downward changes of the tariff as were made would be carried out carefully and gradually so that no harm would be done to legitimate industrial interests.

On the strength of these assurances Liberal candidates, who made the most of them, were able to carry a substantial number of constituencies which are vitally interested in protection of some kind or other. They won for instance, South Ontario and Windsor, the two chief centers of the automobile industry in Canada, seats in the Cape Breton district of Nova Scotia and West Algoma, where important iron and steel plants are located and divisions like Sturgeon in Ontario, Three Rivers, Sherbrooke and Chateauguay-Huntingdon in Quebec, which contain numerous textile plants.

THESE is therefore within the Liberal ranks in the new Parliament a goodly number of members, whose own political fortunes are bound up with the maintenance of some tariff duty or other and it also happens that since the Liberals have only returned 32 members from the low-tariff West, the influence of the western Liberal contingent which will be less than one-fifth of the total party strength will be much smaller than it was in recent years when it sometimes supplied one-third of the Liberal members.

These western Liberals will to a man be strong for far-reaching reciprocity treaty which will open much freer access to the American market for Canadian farm products and they will be comparatively indifferent about what tariff concessions are offered to secure it. But Liberals who sit for industrial districts in the East will be vigilantly

Conservative Senate May Prove Obstacle To

on guard to see that none of the concessions proposed seriously affect their own local industries and the new government will perforce have to take cognizance of their views and susceptibilities. It is believed that the minds of the Liberal leaders incline to the idea of implementing their pledges of tariff reduction through the medium of commercial agreements; besides the reciprocity venture, they are pledged to revise the Ottawa agreements concluded in 1932 with Britain and the other partner states of the British Commonwealth, to end the trade war now raging with Japan and restore trade relations with that country, to mutually beneficial basis and to open negotiations with any other country which is willing to trade on an equitable basis.

FOR this idea there is a good deal to be said. For when, having negotiated a trade treaty, they present it to Parliament for approval, they can make it an issue of want of confidence in the government. It will then be much more difficult for Liberal protectionists who foresee the ruin of their own political fortunes through tariff reductions unpalatable to their constituents, to raise any successful protest because they can be told that the concessions are part of a comprehensive trade bargain concluded in the general national interest and local personal considerations must give way to it.

But if this method of curtailing tariff duties by the agency of commercial agreements is adopted, consideration must be taken of the possibility of the Senate with its Conservative majority taking a line in the game. In Canada tariff changes have usually been embodied in the annual budget. Since this is a money bill, the Senate has no power to touch it, but it is definitely armed with authority to review treaties of any kind, and it is a sure prediction that any reciprocity treaty or other commercial agreement which promised serious inroads upon the domestic preserves of Canadian industrial interests will be subjected to a merciless attack at the hands of Senator Meighen and his friends.

If such surgery were undertaken, Mr. Mackenzie King would immediately throw down the gage of battle to the Senate and renew his advocacy of its ratification, which he has often threatened but never attempted. But the reformation of the Canadian Senate raises thorny problems and involves the whole general question of constitutional reform and it could not be attempted without a decisive popular mandate secured at another general election. So while the new Liberal ministry will certainly carry on the negotiations for a reciprocity treaty with greater hopes of success than its predecessor, some difficult bridges will have to be crossed before its final consummation is assured.

Universalist's Biennial Parley On Tomorrow

Delegates From All Over
U. S. to Attend Sessions
in Washington.

Delegates, representing Universalist churches throughout the United States, are assembling in Washington for a biennial session of the Universalist general convention, which opens tomorrow morning in Universalist National Memorial Church.

Several outstanding speakers, including laymen, are scheduled for addresses. Among them are Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace, and Miss Katherine F. Lennox, head of the United States Children's Bureau. The Rev. Frederick W. Perkins, D. D., pastor of the church which is host to the convention, will speak at the opening service tomorrow morning. Another clergyman who will speak during the week is the Rev. Frederick B. Fisher, D. D., pastor of Central Methodist Church, Detroit, Mich., who is president of the Free Church Fellowship.

Tomorrow morning's service, as well as the evening service at which Secretary Wallace will speak, will be at the Universalist Church. Business sessions through the week will be in the Mayflower Hotel, convention headquarters. Daily religious services, however, will be conducted in the church. Dr. Perkins' sermon tomorrow morning will be on "The Something More of Liberal Religion." Secretary Wallace will speak on "The Spiritual Background of a Democratic Life."

One of the important conferences will be on international relations on Thursday afternoon. It will be led by Dr. Joseph Mayer, Washington, who is secretary of the American Association of University Professors.

Sessions will be in charge of Victor A. Friend, of Massachusetts. This will be the first session of the convention to be held in Washington since the dedication of Universalist Church in April, 1930.

John T. Vance Named
To Bar Committee

Appointment of John T. Vance, law librarian at the Library of Congress, to the American Bar Association's special committee to consider duplication of legal publications, was announced by that organization yesterday.

In 1921 Mr. Vance was elected to membership in the American Bar Association. Since that time he has had an active interest in its affairs, especially in the work of the association's section of international and comparative law.

On Discussion

By
John W. Studebaker

Its Place In A Democracy.

Excerpts from a radio address recently delivered for the National Congress of Parents and Teachers by the United States Commissioner of Education are published herewith.

THE educational frontier is adult education. I think the spearhead of the adult education movement ought to be public affairs forums. So I am urging that a number of "experiment stations" in community-wide public discussions be established.

I am frequently asked in connection with this proposal why I place so much emphasis upon public discussion. So I want to speak very directly upon the subject, "The Primary Role of Public Discussion in a Democracy."

Democracy has been defined as "government by discussion." In the early days of the great American experiment, the town meeting was prominent in the life of every community. In the town hall, people debated the problems of government and got at an understanding of public affairs. During the 1830's and 1840's the American Lyceum flourished, provided a medium of public discussion, and a free platform for the debate of controversial questions.

BUT now that our people are congregated in great cities, riding in automobiles, being entertained by motion pictures, reading syndicated articles, and picking speeches right out of the ether, they are devoting relatively little time to public discussion. As a matter of fact, they really lack the facilities for promoting free public discussion.

When public discussion engaged the active interest of almost all citizens, our social and economic problems were simple. Now these problems are very complex. The need for public discussion has grown enormously, but the practice of the town meeting technique of civic education has almost disappeared. Probably not more than 1,000,000 of our 75,000,000 adults are regularly engaged in any organized process of public discussion of current social, economic and political issues. And the forums we have are largely concentrated in four States.

WELL-MANAGED public discussion does for the intellectual life of the citizen what setting-up exercises do for the physical life. The very process of group discussion develops a capacity for critical thinking, tolerance, power of analysis, and independence. It increases the individual interest in public affairs and provokes a wider reading of the daily newspapers, current magazines, and books. It develops the habit of mind which wants all sides heard before reaching conclusions.

So public discussion is much more than a means of promoting understanding of the specific problems considered. It contributes mightily to the building of an intellectual robustness which is essential to free self-government.

The public forum discussion calls for the free exchange of ideas and the organized consideration of them. If anybody thinks he has the truth about public issues, let him argue for it at the bar of public opinion in the presence of those who disagree with him. Let him invite the critical analysis of his views in open public discussion.

IF the majority will come to his conclusions as a result, he need not worry that some half-baked theorist will come along with a glittering display of pretty promises and win that support away by a superficial appeal. A people trained and practiced in the art of public discussion are not easily swept off their feet by the fads and fancies of the moment. A government built upon a truly critical public opinion is founded upon a rock.

I see it as equal in importance with the feeding of the hungry and the housing of the homeless that we develop means for public discussion and thus learn "to depend upon the counsel of all." For what shall it profit America if we merely solve today's problems with tomorrow's money, but fail to gain capacity to create and manage a permanent and diffused prosperity as freemen in a great democracy?

The Once Over

By

Weather From Russia.

The United States Weather Bureau is seeking the co-operation of Soviet Russia in forecasting American weather. It seems that most of our weather comes from that country by way of the Bering Straits and Alaska.

This accounts, we take it, for the radical changes.

Conservative Americans are going to feel pretty much shocked. They never had the faintest idea Russia had anything to do with our weather. That we are dependent on her for it is most alarming.

William B. Gregg, chief of the United States Weather Bureau, has just returned from Russia, where he has discussed plans for Russian co-operation in meteorological reports. If we get it we will be able to dope out our weather a week in advance.

But why? The fact that it is coming from Russia will only make people more upset.

We're sorry Mr. Gregg brought the matter up. Everybody is going to feel different about the weather from now on. In the past we took it as philosophically as possible and attributed it to luck and cloud formations.

From now on when a deluge breaks up the Elks' picnic we're going to blame it on Stalin.

Every time a big wind springs up and blows off our hat we are going to see the hand of Trotsky.

Somehow we have a feeling blizzards will now seem distinctly un-American. They'll be Russian blizzards, communistic and very unpleasant. There will even seem to be something contrary to American traditions in a snowflake.

If the plumbing bursts we will denounce Petrograd.

One of those slushy weeks with the streets full of melting snow will be associated somehow in our minds with whiskers, shaved heads, bombs and radical literature.

It's all very depressing. Mark Twain said nobody ever did anything about the weather. But we can do something now. Positively.

Just Naturally Barred.

It may be all right to civilize those Ethiopians as long as we are careful enough not to make them accept loud-speaker campaign wagons, animated movies, radio taxicabs and that curious function known as the week-end house party.

Burden Of A Nation

New Works Wage Scale, Aiding Bachelors
But Injuring Families, Held Root Of Relief Strike In Buffalo.

Five billion dollars for relief! This appropriation by the new Seventy-fourth Congress on demand of the Roosevelt Administration stunned economists and stretched the imagination of the country's taxpayers. It was unprecedented in peace time. Who was to spend it? The Administration set up an elaborate organization in Washington, with Harry Hopkins at its head. How was it to be spent? The Administration provided regulations dividing the funds between labor (for relief) and materials. But a further and more vital question was asked: What are the results? The Post, realizing the importance of this question, sent Felix Bruner, a member of its national news staff, and seasoned investigator, out into the Nation—into city alleys and country byways—to find out. This is the seventh of his dispatches.

By Felix Bruner.

Buffalo, N. Y., Oct. 18.—Men in working clothes milled about the sidewalk on both sides of the street. Policemen swinging clubs moved among them. Here and there a man wore on his chest a cardboard sign with the red letters "Strike." On one side of the street were the beginnings of what may eventually be a stadium. Buffalo's WPA program was getting under way.

"Radical agitators," said one official, "are a misapprehension," said another. Both, perhaps, were partly right. Here was the situation: Buffalo has been operating with an efficient works relief organization appointed by the State and financed by the Federal Government, the State and the city. With organization of the Works Progress Administration a new setup came into existence. Through internment of the men from the old works organization to the new.

Pay Rate Changed.

Under the old organization, known as the Emergency Relief Bureau, men were paid according to their needs, based on the size of their families. Under the new organization they were to be paid a "subsistence wage," fixed by President Roosevelt down in Washington. The subsistence wage for common laborers was $55 a month. This meant an increase for single men and for married men without children. For families of three or more it meant a cut. That situation was principally behind the strike—that and the fact that organizers, frankly "reds," had been circulating among the men. They were demanding that the "security wage" be increased to $120 a month, probably more than most of those men had ever earned in their lives.

The emergency relief bureau was ready and willing to meet the situation. "In all cases in which security wages are lower than budgetary needs," it announced, "we shall make up the difference." The men will receive just what they have been receiving.

So, why the change in the system? Why not permit the old State organization to continue to function just as it has in the past? Buffalo has a good relief record. It has been keeping its destitute fed with a minimum of difficulty. The problem appeared to be solved, until the Federal Government stepped in and set up a new organization alongside the old one. Politics! The deeper one goes into the situation in various sections of the East the more one becomes convinced that politicians are taking advantage of the plight of the needy to give jobs to their friends.

Here is the way the Emergency Relief Bureau has been paying the men who have been working on relief jobs: Single men, $9 a week; married men without children, $12; married men with one child, $13; married men with two or more children, $15. Now the Government comes along and orders a flat wage, regardless of the needs of the individual. Under the WPA laborers will receive approximately $12.96 per week, regardless of their needs. It will cost Buffalo and the State of New York $200,000 a month to equalize their wages according to the size of their families, and they are proposing to do it. The new plan will cost the city of Buffalo more money than it has spent under the old one.

Estimates Vary.

Officials estimated that there were 1,000 strikers. Strike leaders said there were 2,700. Only about 1,000 men have been transferred to the WPA pay roll and only a part of them have received wages cuts. Others, many who had not been transferred to WPA, were striking because of anticipated wage cuts or because somebody told them to.

When the workers are convinced that the city and State will make up to them the difference between what the Government proposes to pay and what they have previously been getting, the situation is expected to be settled. But it will be hard for workers, most of them reborn, to understand a situation like this: On one side of the street is a relief project conducted by the Government. On the other is one conducted by the State. It is pay day on one side of the street, but not on the other. On one side of the street the pay is different from that on the other. This actually happened, and serious trouble was avoided only because the city agreed to help the men whose pay day had not arrived.

There is another circumstance that is worrying those in charge of relief. Business conditions are improving. Car loadings are up. Electric current consumption is up. Steel ingot production is the highest in years. But the relief load is increasing! The total relief load for Buffalo is about 35,000 families. A year ago it was only 28,000. It is estimated that there are about 13,000 heads of families who are unemployed but who are not on relief. New relief cases are being drawn from this number.

Improved business conditions are measured by dollars and not by employment. More dollars undoubtedly are being earned for employers by fewer men. This is an indication that much of the relief burden may become permanent. The present Government appropriation of $4,880,000,000 is expected to last only until next July. Officials here already are beginning to ask what will happen then. Nine months is not too early to be planning ahead.

WPA to Come In.

All of the projects now being operated by the Emergency Relief Bureau are expected eventually to be taken over by WPA. About 80 per cent of them involve construction. Others are white collar jobs and bond dodging. Administering this program are 2,000 persons, many of them relief workers. The WPA is setting up its own organization alongside. If the WPA forms an entirely new organization the 2,000 State employees must be taken care of. By July 1, when Government relief expires, the elaborate State organization probably will have been junked. Then the Government either will have to continue its appropriation, or the State will have to pick up all the slack.

Direct relief in the past has been going to from 20,000 to 25,000 families. It takes the form of food orders, rent payments, clothing orders, medical care and food from the Government surplus supply. At the same time, pay checks have been going to from 10,000 to 15,000 men on work relief. The cost of relief has ranged from $325,000 a week to over $500,000 a week. At present it is about $335,000. The case load, number of families on relief, in the last week in September was 33,029. This was an increase of 22.9 per cent over the same week last year!

Capital Transit Weighing Sites Of Bus Station

Company Abandons Circle
Plan in Chevy Chase
After Objection.

The Capital Transit Co. is considering several sites on which to build a bus station and waiting room for its new Connecticut avenue bus line, President John H. Hanna said yesterday.

The site it would prefer and the site it has suggested to official bodies at various times for the last year is a triangular park area on the Maryland side of Chevy Chase Circle. But this suggestion was turned down by the Citizens Committee of Section 2 of Chevy Chase, Md., having jurisdiction over that area, only a week ago, and Hanna said:

"So, of course, we won't build there."

Hanna said the company wanted to build some permanent terminal, comparable to a $45,000 stone structure it is now erecting at Wisconsin and Western avenues northwest. He declined to disclose the sites now being considered.

Citizens' opposition to the Chevy Chase Circle site is based on arguments that circle traffic is already heavy and that the property values in the residential area might be driven down by the presence of a terminal.

The Earle Theater Celebrates Five Years' Emancipation From Early Stage Jinx

Vaudeville Now Important Part Of Weekly Bills

Current Program Notable; Loew's New Bookings; Theater Notes.

Reprinted From Yesterday's Last Edition

By Nelson B. Bell.

There is more cause for rejoicing over the five-year success of the present combination motion picture-vaudeville policy than meets the eye in the announcements of the sterling stage bill that has been assembled to celebrate the occasion, beginning today, at the Earle Theater.

This five-year period, stretching back to the year 1930, by no means marks the full span of the vaudeville policy at the corner of Thirteenth and E. It does, however, mark the full span of a successful vaudeville policy at that spot.

It may not generally be remembered by Washington's theater-going populace, but the Earle, like practically every other local downtown first-run picture house, was a considerable time getting into its stride. To analyze the entire situation and make clear the reasons would require a longer story than there is space for here.

It would be a story going back into the part the Keith interests, along with the Stanley Company of America, played in the salvaging of the Earle before it came under the managerial direction of the Stanley-Grandall Company of Washington, and later, the Warner Brothers.

An Old-Time Rivalry.

It would be a story that would necessarily relate how the then B. F. Keith Theater—the present RKO-Keith Theater, but at that time devoted exclusively to vaudeville of the first grade—gobbled up all the good acts and then graciously permitted the Earle to have what was left. And it would be a story relating, more or less, how the theater-going public of the National Capital remained away from the corner of Thirteenth and E. streets in excessively large numbers for an exceedingly long time.

The Earle had itself a time getting started. Its pictures were not too hot, as the saying goes, and its stage entertainment was worse.

Then came the Warners, as Joe Fenner would not say.

With them came a breaking down of the old booking favoritism, facilitated, to be sure, by the gradual fading from the picture of B. F. Keith's as a major citadel of the receding hosts of "big time" vaudeville, in the sense that term was used in the remote days of the Palace Theater's heyday on Broadway.

Mr. Healy Is Prominent.

That brings us approximately up to the year 1932—and the first bill of the new regime, with Ted Healy and His Stooges headlining the show that inaugurated a new era in which the Earle has placed itself up at the top of the heap. This is the same Ted Healy, incidentally, who recently helped Harry Stockwell pull "Here Comes the Band" out of the fire and this week does much the same thing for Jack Benny, Nat Pendleton and Una Merkel in "It's in the Air."

Shortly after Mr. Healy, and his selected company of nut comedians, came Belle Baker as headliner of the bill, with Maxine Doyle, an unknown and slightly scared ingenue of 17, in tow to assume the precarious duties of "mistress of ceremonies" at the Earle in lieu of proscenium cards or electric annunciators to announce the stage acts. Miss Doyle and her "Tha-a-a-nk you" came to town for a limited engagement of weeks and remained three years.

After a brief interval, capably filled by Gracie Barrie, Maxine was succeeded by the trig and charming Audrey Sieber, the present incumbent. From that on, any seasoned picturegoer can remember his own Earle history as well as this column can do it for him.

Shades of Oscar Hammerstein.

If the Earle could have mustered such a bill back about 1928 or 1927 as that announced in large type, and with pardonable pride, elsewhere on this page, it would be more than a fifth anniversary that is being observed this week. Instead of that, it was getting the bills of the old Cosmos, down on the Avenue near Ninth street, used to play—not so bad, many of them, but not quite good enough, either.

To Johnny Payson, Guy Wonders and the others who have aided in bringing the Earle to its present high estate, congratulations and best wishes for more bills like this Paul Ash-Barto & Mann combination, with all the other swell acts in support.

It looks almost like the line of march on one of those old-time, all-star bills at Hammerstein's Victoria—when Hammerstein's Victoria was Hammerstein's Victoria, if you know what I mean.

Boy, dust off my annual pass!

Evidently with the world premiere of "It's in the Air," his first individual starring vehicle, in mind—that would be opening at Loew's Fox today—Mary Livingstone wires from Los Angeles, which for the purposes of these dispatches is the same as Hollywood, Culver City, Burbank, Universal City, Movie-tone City or what have you, as follows:

"Dear Nelson, how do you like Jack Benny as a great lover?"

The wire which I have not as yet had time to shoot back at her—hers only arrived here a minute ago as this is written—since Mary Livingstone is Mrs. Jack Benny, will read something like this:

"Dear Mary: Una Merkel and I both think he is swell. How do you like him? Don't tell me the answer, let me guess. Regards to you both, mostly you."

Well, anyhow, a little wire like that is good for a little item like this, so what? So that is all it was intended for.

Enlivens Two Screens Today

Providing much of the gaiety that characterizes the tuneful action of "Broadway Melody of 1936," which today enters its second week on the screen at the Palace, and making his debut as an individual star of the films in "It's in the Air," at Loew's Fox, Jack Benny may be said slightly to dominate the local cinema scene. In the stratosphere comedy at the Fox, he is supported by Ted Healy, Nat Pendleton and Una Merkel. Miss Merkel also is prominently concerned in the goings-on at the Palace.

In the first place—it doesn't take me long to catch on!

Fall Show Shopping.

It is pointed out by the helpful cymbal-whangers of the Loew organization in Washington that October and November will be remembered as noteworthy months in the purveyance of delectable entertainment along the upper reaches of F street.

The gay goings-on, it seems, are deemed to begin with the world premiere of "It's in the Air"—here we go again, Mary!—on the screen of Loew's Fox today, with Jack Benny enjoying his first starring venture in celluloid. Following that hilarious item, on the same silver sheet, will come Joan Crawford's "I Live My Life."

This will be on Friday, October 25. Succeeding "Broadway Melody of 1936" at the Palace will be "The Big Broadcast of 1936," with Bing Crosby, Amos 'n' Andy, Ray Noble and His Orchestra, Lyda Roberti, Jack Oakie and numerous others.

low, Spencer Tracy and Joseph Calleia in "Riff Raff."

From United Artists will come "Barbary Coast," with Miriam Hopkins, Joel McCrea and Edward G. Robinson.

There they are—come and get 'em.

Tonight is the night for the late preview of the new feature, "Java Head," at the Belasco Theater. It will be shown, as is usual on Friday nights, following the last projection of "Born for Glory," the current attraction, at 10:20 p. m. It will be recalled that the Joseph Hergesheimer novel, from which the picture was adapted, was a prize winner in the year of its publication. Anna May Wong has the stellar role of Tsou Yuen, supported by Elizabeth Allan, Edmund Gwenn and John Loder, in "Java Head."

Standing Aghast Note.

Charges of Possessing Illicit Still Dropped

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Hagerstown, Md., Oct. 18.—Charges against George W. Crouse, of Frederick County, who was accused by Federal investigators of possessing an illicit still, have been dismissed by U. S. Commissioner D. Angle Wolfinger here. Testimony was found insufficient.

Elmer C. Hutzell was held under $1,000 bond for a hearing Monday when he appeared before Commissioner Wolfinger. Federal agents testified they found an unlicensed still on his premises.

Fire Damages Elevator.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Charles Town, W. Va., Oct. 18.—Damage estimated at $1,000 was done by fire, believed to have been caused by an overheated bearing, to the elevator of the Jefferson Milling Co. here yesterday. While the blaze was confined to the elevator, a considerable amount of water was thrown into the main building. There was little wheat in the mill. The plant employs 25 men.

Woman Hurt in Auto Near Hagerstown

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Hagerstown, Md., Oct. 18.—The sharp bend leading to the bridge over Conococheague Creek on the National Highway, 8 miles west of here, was the scene of the third accident within six weeks last night. Margaret Glover, Lima, Ohio, en route to Washington, sustained a fractured leg and was brought to the Washington County Hospital here. A. B. Conway, Jr., Lima, escaped injury. A section of the bridge wall, recently repaired after a large truck tore it away, was damaged by the Conway car.

Today! THE NEW 1936 PONTIAC Silver Streak SIXES and EIGHTS

More beautiful than ever

and BUILT TO LAST 100,000 MILES!

WHEN YOU see the 1936 Silver Streaks, you'll see one of the greatest value achievements in recent history. The two new lines of Sixes and the great, new Straight-Eight introduce scores of improvements in appearance, safety, comfort, economy, performance and dependability—yet Pontiac's 1936 prices are just a few dollars above those of the lowest-priced cars you can buy!

The new Pontiacs are actually even more beautiful than before, with a new front-end designed to emphasize the famous Silver Streak... with an entirely new headlight mounting... with a different hood, different running boards, and a decidedly different rear-end treatment. What's more, the luxurious new interiors show just as much improvement!

And that's only the outside story of the new Pontiacs. The inside story is even more remarkable. The 1936 Silver Streaks present 101 of the finest features money can buy—because that's what it takes to build motor cars to last 100,000 miles.

The brakes, for example, are big, triple-sealed hydraulic with new warp-proofed drums of fused iron on steel and molded linings. The bodies are solid steel "Turret-Top" Fisher Bodies with No-Draft Ventilation, insulated roofs, and built-in luggage and spare tire compartments. Clutch action, brake action and engine performance are even smoother, while the Syncro-Mesh Transmission is now silent in every speed, forward and reverse. Starting and driving have been greatly simplified—in fact, the new Pontiacs are as automatic as a car can safely be! And the smooth, even more economical engines feature cooling and lubricating systems that are models for the entire industry!

These, of course, are merely the highlights of what awaits you at your Pontiac dealer. Be sure to get the rest of the story, including the startling facts about Pontiac's low prices. And if you must delay your visit keep an open mind until you see the low-priced cars with the finest pledge of quality in the history of motor-ing—built to last 100,000 miles!

PONTIAC MOTOR COMPANY, PONTIAC, MICHIGAN

List prices at Pontiac, Michigan, begin at $615 for the Six and $730 for the Eight (subject to change without notice). Standard group of accessories extra. Easy G. M. A. C. Time Payments.

Ah! A Steak Broiled Over an Open Fire Is Perfect for a Crisp October Sunday.

Ideal Outdoor Day Starts With Big Breakfast

Homey Supper Tops Off Picnic Dinner, and Everyone's Happy.

By Dorothea Duncan.

Tomorrow let's have a sturdy breakfast, a steak roast in the open about 2 o'clock in the afternoon, and a warm, inviting supper at home. You will find this a perfect schedule of meals for a crisp Sunday in October, when every member of the family clamors to be out of doors for every minute of the day.

Breakfast can be a leisurely meal of favorite dishes, for Sunday is one day in the week when everyone has a chance to enjoy second helpings and two cups of coffee. Let the fragrant odor of sizzling sausages, griddle cakes and good coffee be the family's alarm clock tomorrow. It will work like a charm.

A picnic luncheon cooked over an open fire will divide the responsibilities of cooking the main Sunday meal among all the members of the family. If the day is very chilly take hot soup in a thermos to take the chill out of your bones. Steak never tastes so good as when broiled over an open fire and popped between buttered rolls. Potatoes can be roasted in the embers of the fire. As soon as the picnic spot is chosen the fire should be started, so it will be possible to have hot coals for roasting the potatoes, otherwise they will not be cooked in time to eat with the steak.

A crisp vegetable salad can be carried in a mason jar and served from paper plates, or it can be packed in individual paper cups with covers. Cake and fruit, and a hot beverage and milk for the children will complete the meal.

Supper at home should be a meal that is easy to prepare. One hot dish, a delicious salad and beverage will be sufficient. Baked beans and Boston brown bread make an inviting supper combination. The beans can be canned ones that have been reheated in the oven. Right now one famous manufacturer of delicious baked beans is offering two individual bean pots with every purchase of one can of beans. These bean pots are ideal for serving attractive individual portions. The beans can be poured from can into pot, topped with a strip of bacon, and set in the oven until sizzling hot and ready to serve. Delicious Boston brown bread can also be bought in cans, and it can be heated by dropping the can into boiling water for about half an hour.

The following menus for Sunday have been developed along the above mentioned plan.

MENUS FOR SUNDAY.

BREAKFAST.

Grapefruit halves with sherry
Toasted wheat biscuits with light butter

Buttermilk griddle cakes Maple syrup
Broiled sausage links
Coffee Milk (for children)

PICNIC LUNCHEON.

Tomato juice cocktail
Broiled hamburgers and onions
Between rolls
Baked potatoes Mixed vegetable salad
Brownies Fresh fruit
Coffee Milk (for children)

SUPPER.

Oven baked beans
Boston brown bread
Medley of fruits with French dressing
Hot tea Hot cocoa

Would You Like This Decorated Salad Bowl?

Some lucky woman who enters her favorite recipe in The Post's recipe contest will win this attractively-decorated salad bowl with matching serving fork and spoon.

Smart Utensils to Be Awarded Winners in Post Recipe Contest

Hand-Carved Salad Bowl Is the First Prize to Be Awarded in Six Weeks' Competition for Housewives of the Washington Area; Other Attractive Offerings.

Do you ever wish that you could cast your household budget to the four winds and go downtown and indulge in as many attractive household accessories as your fancy desires?

Every woman who likes smart, up-to-the-minute table accessories and kitchen utensils that are designed to bring perfect cooking results will welcome the opportunity of winning one of the illustrated prizes.

To the woman who submits the best recipe during the next six weeks, The Washington Post will give this lovely hand-carved salad bowl with matching wood serving fork and spoon. The interesting feature about the salad bowl is that the brilliant color design is resistant to vinegar and other salad ingredients and will last through years of constant usage.

Smartly Designed Utensils.

A cake server and box smartly designed of non-tarnishing chromium and white porcelain, decorated with clever red handles and knob, will be second prize. Third will be a Dutch oven, one of those indispensable portable baking utensils that has innumerable uses and can be used successfully for baking dishes atop the range as in a large oven.

In addition to these three prizes to be awarded at the end of six weeks, five prizes of $1 each will be awarded weekly. Every woman who wins a weekly prize will be eligible in the final judging for the grand prizes. This gives every woman six opportunities of having her recipe placed on the winning list.

Salad dressing has been chosen as the recipe subject for next week. Every woman has her favorite type of salad dressing, but remember that there are few basic recipes for making salad dressings. If you submit a variation of a mayonnaise dressing, for example, be sure to include the recipe for the mayonnaise as well as the ingredients and procedure of mixing for the variation. Write out your recipe and send it to Dorothea Duncan in care of The Washington Post. All entries should be received at this office not later than next Saturday morning.

Results of this week's contest for cake recipes will be found on next Tuesday's food page. Names of the prize winners and their winning recipes will be printed.

Persimmon Salad.

Ripe persimmons and soft cream cheese make an excellent salad combination. Cut the fruit into small cubes, fill the hollow at the base with a small ball of the cheese. Nest in crisp lettuce and serve with French dressing.

Chicken, Rice Loaf Is Dish To Be Prized

It May Be Fixed Day Before Being Served; Leftovers No Problem.

A CHICKEN and rice loaf that may be served hot or cold, with cream gravy or mayonnaise, is a dish to be prized. Aside from tasting wonderfully good, it has other highly desirable virtues. It may be prepared the day before it is to be served, and the rice makes the chicken do double duty. And leftovers, if any, taste delicious.

Stewing fowls are the best kind of chickens to buy for loaf making. Have the market man cut the bird up. Ask him to clean the feet and send them, too. If he sends them without cleaning, pour boiling water over them and let them stand for two or three minutes. The outer skin can then be pulled off easily. Cook them with the stewing chicken; they add gelatin and body to the broth.

Wash the pieces of chicken. Cover them with hot water, add a teaspoon of salt and let the chicken simmer until the meat is tender. Remove the pieces of chicken from the broth and strain it. Let it come to a rolling boil and cook one cup of washed rice in it, letting the water evaporate so the rice grains will be dry and white. While the rice is cooking, remove the chicken meat from the bones and put it through a food chopper. Into a buttered deep loaf pan put a half-inch layer of rice, packing it in quite firmly. Then arrange a layer of minced chicken, another layer of rice, another layer of chicken, and finally a layer of rice on top. If the loaf is to be served hot, set it into a moderate oven (375 degrees F.) for 20 minutes. If it is to be served cold, set it into the refrigerator for an hour. When ready to serve, unmold the loaf on a platter and garnish with parsley and stuffed olives or sliced tomatoes.

A ring of buttered peas and carrots may be arranged around the loaf. Some of the broth may be reserved for making gravy instead of using all of it for cooking the rice.

Diebetics Offered Sugar-Free Candy

Low Carbohydrate Cookies Also Manufactured.

Sugar-free candy and low carbohydrate cookies for diebetics or persons on a limited carbohydrate diet are being manufactured.

One company puts out a selection of candy which includes hard gum drops, horehound menthol cough drops, lollipops, chocolate bars and chewing gum. A combination of noncaloric ingredients, including saccharine, is sold in powdered form to be used in place of sugar for sweetening fruits.

Lemon, orange and ginger snaps and cheese wafers are being made with a low carbohydrate content. These can be used by the diebetic if the physician approves. An imitation maple syrup with no sugar content also is available. This, too, will add variety to the limited diet, but should not be used in cases of diabetes unless a physician is consulted.

These products are sold in a Washington store. For further information call Dorothea Duncan, National 4200.

Glass Service in Pastel Colors A New Note in Table Decoration

Hostesses Have Chance to Work Out Many Novel Center-piece Arrangements as Holiday Season Approaches.

The hostess who centers her attention on her table centerpiece will score a success for her fall dinner or luncheon.

With the calendar for the next few months dotted with holidays there are all sorts of opportunities to work out the unusual in table arrangements that will put you in the four-star class of hospitality.

Although there is a growing trend toward white appointments, colors offer too many chances for unleashing an artistic bent to lose their popularity. In fact, the smart hostess who isn't afraid to give rein to her color senses can enter the realm of the true artist.

Pastel Glass Shown.
This season both glass and china manufacturers exhibiting in the Merchandise Mart, Chicago, have gone into the garden and orchard for inspiration and emerged with services and special pieces that would give the flowers that bloom in the spring pause for consideration.

One leading manufacturer is showing complete glass services in pastel colors, his new shades including amber, green, the hue of the first spring leaves, azure, topaz and wisteria. Crystal stems for the glasses accentuate the exquisite shades of the bowls and bases.

On a table arranged for an autumn houseware show at the mart, the centerpiece was of long stemmed purple violets, flanked by low bowls of pink button chrysanthemums, the cloth was of bluish damask and the glasses, cocktail and salad service were of the wisteria and crystal glassware. Needless to say, the table caused a sensation. Another arrangement which any hostess might copy to advantage was achieved by keying the color combination to a fruit centerpiece. Scarlet-cheeked apples, bunches of deep purple grapes and one or two small yellow pumpkins were arranged on a bed of autumn leaves for the centerpiece and wisteria and amber glassware was combined for the service, the cloth being of dull gold damask.

Mist Ware Smart.
A spur to hostess originality is the mist glass which can be had in bowls, vases, ornaments, salad services and a number of other special pieces. Helping hostesses to solve the problem of inexpensive centerpiece when flowers have become a luxury, one manufacturer has devised an arrangement that is both smart and practical. A medium-sized bubble bowl of mist glass is set on a rectangular mirror and arctic animals—bears, seals and penguins—are grouped on either side. The effect is modern and the feeling is chic.

Among other interesting new glassware this season is the pattern in mist and clear crystal with modern treatment in design. The glass exergens of grandmother's day, for fruit and flower combinations, are coming more and more into use.

New, Simple Method For Serving Carrots

If you want a new but simple method for serving carrots try the following recipe for carrots: Wash and scrape tender, young carrots of the same size. Cook in boiling water to which a little salt and one bay leaf has been added. When tender, drain carrots. When carrots are cool enough to handle, cut in water thin slices. Melt butter in frying pan and when hot add carrot slices. Turn frequently so carrots may be brown on both sides, being careful that they do not burn. Serve with a sprinkling of finely chopped parsley.

Milk Sherbet Ideal Finale for Dinner

A milk sherbet answers the desert problem when an ice is too light and an ice cream too rich. A milk sherbet combines the best features of both desserts, for it has the smoothness of an ice cream and the refreshing tingle of an ice. Banana-pineapple milk sherbet is an ideal selection for the fall desert. Try it this way.

Banana-Pineapple Milk Sherbet.
8 bananas (2 cups sliced)
2 tall cans irradiated evaporated milk
3 tablespoons lemon juice
1 No. 2 can pineapple juice
Press bananas through a coarse sieve. Combine with other ingredients. Freeze with a 1 part salt to 8 parts ice mixture. If a sweeter sherbet is desired, dissolve ½ to 1 cup of sugar in banana pulp. Yield, 3 quarts.

You will find that the evaporated milk gives this sherbet an exceptionally smooth texture. Keep several cans on the pantry shelf, for it is convenient to use for cooking when your fresh milk supply unexpectedly runs out. It is economical, too.

Agents Wreck
2d Kent Still
In Dry Drive*C. J. Callahan Leads 5
Other Federal Men
to Capture of 4.*Declares Seizures Mark a 'Concerted Drive' on Bootlegging.

By the Associated Press.

Chestertown, Md., Oct. 18.—Another big Kent County distillery was destroyed today in what a Federal officer said was a "concerted drive" to wreck an allegedly unlawful liquor industry in this section.

Charles J. Callahan, internal revenue agent from Salisbury, reported he and five other officers closed in during the early morning hours on a 1,200-gallon-capacity liquor plant in a low-lying wooded section between here and Tolchester.

Four men were at the distillery, he said. After a fist fight with them and chase through a marsh, Callahan added, the authorities arrested the men, dynamited the plant and seized 520 gallons of liquor, distillery supplies and equipment.

Is Second Case.

Only a week ago an even larger distillery was demolished in another section of the county. A slightly smaller quantity of whisky was confiscated.

Callahan charged that moonshiners had been coming into this section from Cecil County, setting up illicit plants and selling their product in four counties on the southern Eastern Shore.

"They have been getting away with it," he said, "but they will not do so any longer. A concerted campaign is being conducted by Federal and county officers to stamp out this business."

The four men arrested in the latest raid were listed as Hill Cox, 41, Rising Sun; Luther Slicer, 35, Horace W. Reynolds, 22, Colona, and Thomas Anderson, 30, Port Deposit.

Men Are Battered.

Their clothing was muddy and torn, supposedly from the flight through the mud and bushes. One had bruises and cuts on the face, and the officers said these were received in a rough and tumble personal combat with the officers.

The men were lodged in the Kent County Jail pending a hearing before United States Commissioner W. M. Horney at Centreville. They were faced with charges of illegal manufacture of liquor.

The officers participated with Callahan in the raid were Federal Agent Henry P. Thompson, also of Salisbury; Deputy Sheriff John N. Bennett, Jr., Archie Lesage and Earle Finner, and a fourth Kent County officer.

Among the seized products and equipment, they listed one distillery unit of 750-gallon daily capacity and an auxiliary unit of 500-gallon capacity, 7,800 gallons of mash, a truck containing 350 gallons in a hoghead, a 20-horsepower steam boiler, 40 mash boxes and approximately 100 empty cans.

Drive on Fire Hazards
May Carry Penalties

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Winchester, Va., Oct. 18.—A campaign to rid the city of fire hazards may result in court summonses for property owners who fail to heed recommendations for improvement of their property made after a recent inspection by Otis Kendig, deputy State fire marshal, Arthur M. Field, city manager, said today.

Kendig reported to officials the existence of 49 alleged firetraps. Another inspection will be made soon to determine whether recommendations have been followed. Owners and occupants who have disregarded instructions will be liable to a fine, it was said.

Face Liquor Charge.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Lynchburg, Va., Oct. 18.—G. B. Woodbridge, 18, and John Cusack, 32, were arrested here yesterday on charge of transporting 10 gallons of liquor. They will be tried in the municipal court tomorrow morning.

blocked twice and might have been the best horse. He saved third money. The winner paid $5.90.

Jockey Injured.

Captain, after being second twice, finally won a steeplechase, leading Little Woman to the finish line after the two had fought it out from the start. Semele took third money by a nose from Clifton's Queen far back of the front pair. Two misadventures marked the race. Soughton boy and Double Beque coming to grief. Jockey J. Jennings, who had the mount on Soughton Boy, was struck by the horse and suffered a possible broken hip.

The well played Mario, excellently ridden by Jockey Sammy Benick, won the third race, a six-furlong sprint, by a nose from Dixie Princess. Veritas was third in the field of a dozen second-rate players. Mario overcame interference on the back stretch to come up with a driving finish. He paid $7.30.

James City Wins.

James City, a heavily campaigned juvenile, scored an easy victory in the fourth race. Jockey Wright had him under mild restraint while following the pace of Green Mist and when turned loose the St. James colt bounded away to win with plenty of daylight from Green Mist. My Colin was third. James City rewarded the faithful with a $7.80 mutuel.

A major upset developed in the sixth race when Tiana, a first-time starter, overcame a heavy handicap of seven promising juveniles at a mile and 70 yards. The filly, a daughter of Bright Knight, defeated, among others, Thirteen Stars and Re-election to pay a $53.80 mutuel.

Hut won the seventh race by eight lengths with Jockey Meade trying to restrain him. Bread King, the pace setter, was second and Wishing Star third. Hut was well backed at a $7.50 mutuel.

The final went to High Flag at a $6.80 mutuel.

Potomac State Meets Shepherd Team Today

Keyser, W. Va., Oct. 18.—Faced with the prospect of replacing two injured linemen, the Potomac State team will meet the Shepherd team today. Saturday, Coach Dana Lough has been putting the Potomac State squad through long drills in an effort to develop capable replacements for tomorrow's game with Shepherd College in Shepherdstown, W. Va.

Everett Gibbs, veteran guard, is out for the remainder of the season with an injured elbow, while Bill Wilson, quarterback, is on the sidelines with a wrenched shoulder. The task of finding replacements was lightened somewhat when Gerald Rotruck and Mike Robinson, guard and tackle, respectively, of last year's Keyser High eleven, reported for practice.
